

This Chart, Based on That issued in Washington during the budget bureau's 1960 midyear briefing, shows the $12½ billion deficit for the 1959 fiscal year and the hoped for balanced budget for the 1960 fiscal year with an estimated surplus of $100. million.

Strike Endangers Balanced Budget

Continuation Could Cut Down National Prosperity

Washington — The Eisenhower administration had a new and urgent reason today for possible intervention in the 10-week steel strike. If it is not settled soon, it will unbalance the federal budget.

Budget Director Maurice Stans yesterday unveiled a new and higher estimate of federal spending for this 1960 fiscal year. It carries a $95 million surplus, a $25 million increase over previous estimates, built on the assumption of prosperity and rising tax collections.

Threat to Surplus
Government revenues will suffer quickly, Stans told reporters, if the mighty steel industry fails to resume production in time to prevent a spreading industrial paralysis, dropping income, and declining profits.

He told reporters: "If the strike is not settled in two or three weeks — or if there is no Taft-Hartley injunction or some other action to get the men back to work — the surplus would be rather quickly wiped out."

Chances of a quick settlement of the strike remained uncertain. Negotiators have been meeting spasmodically in New York with no apparent progress.

There had been previous indications that early in October would be the deadline for serious consideration by President Eisenhower of strike-stopping intervention.

Larger Budget
Sec. of Labor James P. Mitchell said recently he would recommend the Taft-Hartley procedure if the strike extended into next month and created a national emergency. Invoking the labor act would bring about an 80-day resumption of work for fact-finding and "cooling off," but would not prevent a renewal of the strike at the end of that time.

House Tells Sidelights of Mr. K's Visit

Charlie House tells some interesting tales about Soviet Premier Khrushchev and the people around him in today's On the House column on Page A-15.

Charlie was in Iowa for the Russian's visit there. He suspects Nikita — and some of the Russian reporters accompanying him — know more English than they admit. He tells a little about the proper ways to spell and pronounce the Russian names and relates several interesting bits of sidelight that occurred during Khrushchev's visit to the corn state.

53 Killed in Crash Of French Airliner

Sen. Kennedy Questioned on His Religion

Declares Faith Would Not Conflict With Presidency

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Platteville — Stumping the rural hamlets of southwestern Wisconsin like the active candidate he is in all but name, Sen. John Kennedy late yesterday challenged those who believe that a Catholic cannot fulfill the obligations of his religious faith and the constitutional duties of the presidency.

It was a young college student at the state college here who put to the youthful candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination the question that underlies much of the private and public speculation about his chances for the nation's chief office. The audience of students applauded as Kennedy smiled and paraphrased in reply: "Let them (who doubt that a faithful Catholic can serve

12 Survive as Big Plane Explodes and Burns in Pine Forest Near Bordeaux

Bordeaux, France — A 4-engine French airliner crashed and exploded in a pine forest near Bordeaux last night after struggling aloft with some difficulty for a flight to Africa. Fifty-three persons were killed. Twelve lived through it.

The tragedy was the worst ever to strike a French airline. The plane, a DC7, smashed into the woods, exploded and burst into flames. Most of the 12 survivors were burned seriously. Some were thrown clear. Others were saved by rescue teams fighting flames from the plane's fully loaded gasoline tanks.

Plane Crashes In Aleutians

No Sign of Life At Wreckage of Commercial Craft

Anchorage, Alaska — A commercial airliner with 16 persons aboard crashed on an Aleutian island last night and a search pilot reported no sign of life at the wreckage.

The plane, a DC4 of the Reeves Aleutian airline, crashed at the 2,000-foot level of a mountain on Great Sitkin island about 5:25 p. m. (11 p. m. CDT).

A navy pilot located the wreckage 40 minutes later and reported the plane appeared badly shattered. The coast guard sent a tug with a ground party to the isolated island.

The DC4, on Reeves' Flight 3 out of Anchorage for the Aleutian island of Adak, carried seven air force men, one navy man, one army man, two civilians and five crew members.

Airline officials said the plane had started its approach to the Adak strip. There apparently was no report of trouble from the pilot before the crash.

Names of the military men were withheld until relatives were notified.

Castro Puts Stiff Controls On Currency

Duties on Imports Boosted to Almost Prohibitive Levels

BY ROBERT BERRELLEZ

Havana — Fidel Castro has proclaimed an austerity program in Cuba to combat the biggest threat to his galloping revolution — a dollar shortage.

The bearded premier moved to clamp stiff controls on all foreign exchange dealings and nearly prohibitive duties on imports.

New tariffs ranging from 30 to 100 per cent will be applied on F. O. B. value at the port of embarkation, it was announced last night.

60 Per Cent on Cars
Castro says the nation must save $175 million in its foreign exchange to maintain economic stability. Cuba's gold and foreign exchange reserves stood at $110 million on Sept. 15 — one million less than when ousted dictator Fulgencio Batista fled New Year's day.

An 80 per cent duty on American television sets and 60 per cent levy on American cars and refrigerators will mean they can be bought only by the wealthy.

Many more essential products and some fruits, vegetables and other foods will be beyond the pocketbook of most Cubans as well.

The full impact of the new taxes on the consumer is difficult to estimate since the surcharges will be applied to the value of the items at the foreign port.

Each Hopes to Modify Policies of Other in Interest of World Peace

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN

Washington — President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev go to a quiet mountain retreat today for a fateful weekend debate. Each will try to persuade the other to change his government's policy in the interest of peace.

Khrushchev, newly returned from a remarkable and hectic tour of America, indicates he has not retreated an inch from his persistent accusation that U. S. policy created and preserved the cold war.

President Eisenhower, after 11 days of startling headlines about the boss of world communism, is pictured as hopeful the tour had some impact upon the visitor which might induce him to listen more receptively to the U. S. government's arguments.

Private Dinner

The two got down to man-to-man talks this weekend in a placid setting ideally adapted to talk about peace. In the cool privacy of the president's Camp David retreat in the Catoctin mountains, 65 miles away from the bustle of Washington, the two will talk until Sunday about disarmament, divided Germany, nuclear weapons and other issues which keep the world's nerves on edge.

Khrushchev ended his United States tour with the same note of persistent challenge he sounded at the outset: The burden of proof of good intentions is upon the United States.

This was his theme at the final non-diplomatic gathering of his tour, a dinner in Washington attended by a group of leading U. S. businessmen last night. The dinner, given by Eric Riddick, publisher of the New York Journal of Commerce, was private. Those present quoted Khrushchev as saying:

U. S. Steel Head Suffers Stroke

Partly Paralyzed After Surgery For Knife Wound

Hyannis, Mass. — Walter F. Munford, 59, president of U. S. Steel corporation, suffered a cerebral thrombosis which partially paralyzed him yesterday, after surgery for an accidental knife wound in his abdomen.

Dr. Robert L. O'Connor, U. S. Steel medical director, disclosed today that Munford had suffered a stroke late yesterday afternoon and had since been under the care of Boston specialists.

His condition was described as not critical, but he has a paralysis of his right arm and difficulty in speaking.

The report said that Munford is progressing satisfactorily in his recovery from surgery on Wednesday for a deep knife wound in his abdomen.

A district attorney's report said he appeared to have slipped and fallen on a knife he was putting away in the kitchen of his Chatham home Wednesday.

Dr. O'Connor said that although Munford is alert and responsive today, the stroke will "materially delay his recovery."

Operations of the huge U. S. Steel corporation, currently are tied up by the prolonged steel strike.

Ceylon's Leader Shot by Man Wearing Buddhist Monk's Robes

Gov. Gen. Sir Oliver Goonetilleke declared a state of emergency in this Indian Ocean island.

In a broadcast to the nation, he announced mobilization of the regular reserves and the volunteer forces of the army, navy and air force. He said he did so for the protection of the people.

He reported that the prime minister's condition was termed by surgeons "satisfactory," but he could not be considered out of danger.

Police said that between 9:30 a. m. and 9:45 a. m. two men in the robes of Buddhist monks called at the prime minister's house and asked to see him.

Bandaranaike greeted them. After they had talked, the prime minister took leave of one by bowing. As he was about to bid farewell to the other, the first whipped a .45-caliber revolver from under McKenzie's were taken.

The boat, about a mile or two from shore, had filled with water and capsized, but did not sink.

Bandaranaike was due to leave for New York Monday to attend a session of the U. N. General assembly. He planned later visits to London, Cairo and Bonn.

Bandaranaike came to power in April, 1956, the year this island got its independence as a member of the British Commonwealth.

Words often misused: The word LONELY implies a longing for congenial companionship, while SOLITARY implies nothing more than absence of companions, or isolation. One may be lonely, though surrounded by uncongenial persons. One may live a solitary life without being lonely.

Often mispronounced: Les Miserables (famous novel by Victor Hugo). Pronounce lay-mee-zay-rabb-la, with principal accent on fourth syllable.

Often misspelled: Gesture (motion). Jester (one who jokes).

Word study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: incapacitate: to deprive of capacity; disable; disqualify. "His ill health incapacitated him for several weeks."

New Jewish Center Replaces One Burned by Storm Troops

Berlin — A new Jewish community center is nearing completion in West Berlin to replace the synagogue burned by Hitler's storm troopers.

Mayor Willy Brandt will turn over the new center to the city's Jewish community Sept. 27. The consecration of the synagogue is scheduled for Oct. 1.

The 2-story, modernistic structure has been built on the site of the old Fasanenstrasse synagogue, Germany's most famous and largest until "Crystal night" Nov. 9, 1938.

"Crystal night," so named because of the smashed Jewish shop windows that littered the streets of German cities, marked the start of the Nazis' all-out assault on the Jews.

Hitler's brown-shirted storm troopers burned out 177 synagogues, killed 30 Jews, jailed 20,000 others and wrecked 7,500 Jewish firms.

On narrow Fasanen street, jeering storm troopers held back fire-fighters as the massive synagogue burned to a shell.

West and East Berlin today have a Jewish population of about 7,500 compared with a pre-Hitler figure of 175,000.

To make good for "Crystal night," West Berlin put up two million marks ($476,000) to finance construction of the new community center.

The portal of the old synagogue was saved and now frames the main entrance to the new center.

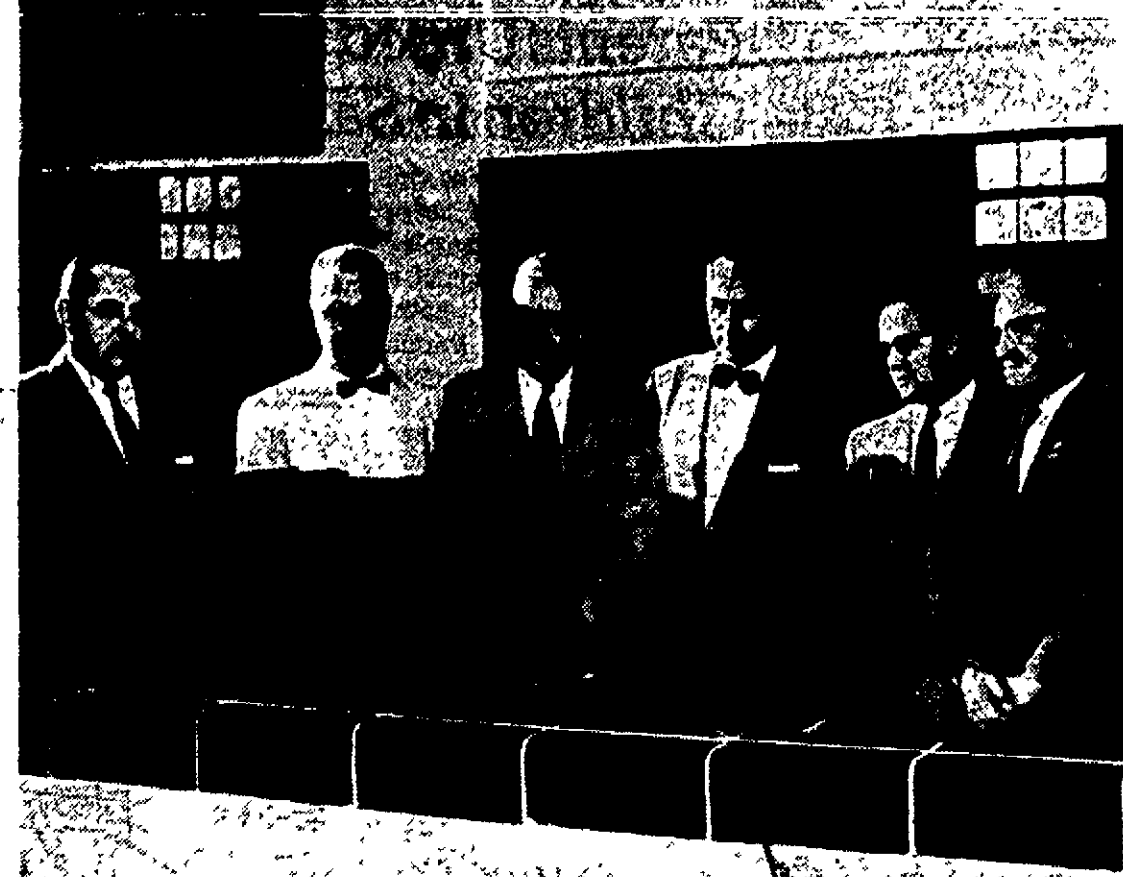

The structure houses an auditorium seating 600, a library, space for a religious school and a restaurant.

A permanent exhibit including photos and documents of the Nazi persecution of the Jews will be opened on the twenty-first anniversary of "Crystal night."

'Indicative of Growth'

College Officials, Regents Take Part in Dedication of OSC Union

Oshkosh — The new Reeves Memorial union was dedicated in an hour-long ceremony in the Oshkosh state college gymnasium this morning.

Eugene R. McPhee, director of state colleges, told students and faculty members the dedication of the building was an especially happy occasion because it was indicative of the growth of the institution.

Terming the union as the "living room of the house of learning," McPhee said it should be used not only by students, faculty and alumni but should also be opened to the community residents as expedient.

He warned that the union should not compete with commercial establishments of Oshkosh and asked students to cooperate with the administration in being aware of the administrative problems of a self-governing union.

McPhee extended thanks to legislative members, former president, Forest R. Polk, who was unable to attend, faculty members, architect and contractors.

He also thanked the students for paying their union fees during the time of construction, the fees being used to furnish the building.

Presentation of the building was made by Mrs. Gordon McIntyre, Appleton, a member of the college board of regents, and it was accepted by Dr. Roger Guiles, college president.

Guiles told the assemblage that "like most worthwhile things, the union just didn't happen but was a matter of cooperation." He said it will add richness to social life and

Parents Urged to Train Children in Safety Rules

Neenah — "Train your children in the ways of safety and set a good example," Robert Hanley, Hoover PTA president, conducted the meeting. Robert Suess, vice president, was in charge of the program and introduced the speaker.

The Fond du Lac sergeant spoke on "Are We Murdering Our Children?"

"Good driving attitudes must be fostered in the home and handed down from parent to child," he declared. He urged parents to consider whether they are setting good safety examples for their children.

If all drivers were as good as our best drivers, he said, the accident rate in the United States could be reduced 95 per cent.

In reply to a question from one parent concerning slow drivers on the highways, the sergeant said there is no clear-cut law requiring drivers to travel at a minimum speed. The present law only

Open House for the New $365,000 addition to the Neenah water filtration plant will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. The addition includes three new filter beds and storage facilities to bring the plant's capacity up to 7 million gallons a day. The plant is located on S. Park avenue, just north of the Neenah swimming pool.

Took 2 Referendums

Neenah One of First Cities in U. S. to Soften Water Back in 1937

Neenah — Two referendums in favor of the change to 654 and a 4-year interim period which saw considerable promotion work resulted in Neenah being one of the first cities in the country to soften its water.

The promotion program changed the results from a 2 to 1 defeat in 1932 of softening water through building a new filtration plant addition to a whopping 4 to 1 vote favoring it in April of 1936. The recorded vote then was 2,455 have a capacity of 670,000 gallons a day or 465 gallons a minute each while the other three each have a million gallon capacity or 694 gallons a minute.

These tanks are made of concrete. The filter beds are made up of 2½ feet of pure silica sand which is on top of 1½ feet of gravel graded from a size slightly larger than the sand at the top to stones 1½ to 2 inches in size at the bottom. Below the gravel are numerous parallel pipes leading to a large central pipe which carries the filtered water to the reservoir.

This water never is exposed from then until it passes through the house tap. It waits in the various reservoirs until it is called forth by the opening of a faucet in a house, a hydrant, or an industrial valve.

The sand filters are washed by forcing 25,000 gallons of clean water under pressure back through the gravel and sand, overflowing and passing off through two troughs two feet above the sand level. Hoses also are used to scour the surface of the sand. The sand is replaced about every five years.

Chlorine Again Added A small quantity of chlorine is added to the water as it passes to the storage basin for its final sterilization, merely as a precaution since the water is normally sterile before it reaches this point.

The elevated water tank at the plant stores 600,000 gallons of water and the tank on Cecil street near the city garage stores another 300,000 gallons. These are used if the demand for water exceeds that taken care of by the pumps at the plant.

The bulk of the filtered water is stored in three underground reservoirs. Two at the plant have a total of a million gallons capacity while in 1958 the new Cedar street reservoir was opened with a capacity of 2 million gallons. It has its own pumping station.

Five of the pumps at the plant are electrically operated with a total capacity of 12 million gallons a day. Two pumps are operated by gasoline engines and are saved for emergencies. Their capacity is 2½ million gallons of water per day.

Many housewives took an active role in bringing about that change as well as the water committee of the Neenah Advancement committee which set up a gaily painted model filtration plant on N. Commercial street.

Water from the canal was taken and run through filters to be purified and softened before the public's eye. This water then was sent to dinner meetings or delivered anywhere in town with an invitation to house owners to taste it, drink it, cook with it and wash in it.

60 Grains Per Gallon At that time Neenah was getting its water from four wells which gave clear water but a very hard water, measured at 60 grains to the gallon. The lime and calcium deposits in such a hard water over the years had plugged tion by 1961 and Highway 26 to the Fond du Lac county line which is expected for a 1962 completion, depending on the progress of the work in Fond du Lac county.

25 Years Ago Reconstruction and relocation of Highway 41 to bypass the cities of Oshkosh, Neenah and Menasha began about 25 years ago but received the greatest impetus in the post-war years.

Completed this year is the 4-laning of 16 miles within Winnebago county with grade separations and traffic interchanges at its intersections with major highways. Also included in the work is 6½ miles of ramp roads and almost three miles of frontage roads.

Total construction cost of this work is $7,700,000 with another $1 million spent for right-of-way purchases.

Relief Corps Votes Funds to Hospital Building Project

Neenah — Members of the H. J. Lewis Women's Relief corps voted a donation to the Theda Clark Memorial hospital building fund at the Thursday evening meeting in S. A. Cook armory.

shift many a water pipe and clogged many a boiler tube so that house hearing and operation of household plumbing systems was extremely difficult. The water is now rated at about 4 grains to the gallon.

Neenah had been getting its water from the four wells since 1893 when the first water pumping plant was built. Before then water was received by collecting rain water in household cisterns and from private wells.

In dry seasons, several enterprising persons would haul raw lake water in tank cars to houses since water purification was not stressed in those early days.

The use of cisterns continued through the years since the well water was much too hard for washing clothes. With the building of the first addition to the old 1893 building in 1936-37, the need for cisterns disappeared.

3 Filters at First Three filters were installed in that first addition and total gallons pumped ran about 180 million. Growth of the city led to three more filters and another addition to the plant in 1954 and the city could send 4 million gallons of water a day through the plant.

Only once in the plant's history did it have to ration water for lawn sprinkling and that was just before the extra filters were put into operation back in 1953.

The three new filters added this year raise the total productive capacity up to at least 7 million gallons a day, enough for some time to come. Pumpage runs from 4 to 5 million gallons a day on the average now.

As Everett Westfahl, water department superintendent, puts it, "We are in beautiful shape now and our need for many years to come seem to be met."

Carol Swentner Feted at Two Bridal Showers

Neenah — Bride-elect Miss Carol Swentner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swentner, has recently been honored at two pre-nuptial showers. Trinity Lutheran church will be the scene of her marriage Oct. 3 to Marvin Swichtenberg. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Swichtenberg, route 2, Menasha.

On Sept. 17 Miss Judith Van Alstine, who will serve as maid of honor and Mrs. Richard Miller were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at the Neenah recreational building.

Another miscellaneous shower was held Monday evening at the YWCA building by Mrs. William Swentner, grandmother of the prospective bride. Mrs. John Palmer and Mrs.

Everett Westfahl Sees Output Treble, Employees Stay Same topped the 1.1 billion gallons mark while it was around 300 million gallons 17 years ago. Westfahl took over the superintendency upon the retirement of Frank Mace who had held the post since 1915. Mace succeeded J. P. Jasper, who also had served many years.

The present water department superintendent had been a journeyman plumber for 16 years prior to being named superintendent. He served this year on the planning committee of the convention of the Wisconsin section of the American Water Works association and delivered a paper before the convention on Neenah's requirements for water main installations.

60 Miles of Mains Back in 1942 Neenah had 43.6 miles of water mains, Westfahl recalled. This has now gone up to 60 miles of mains.

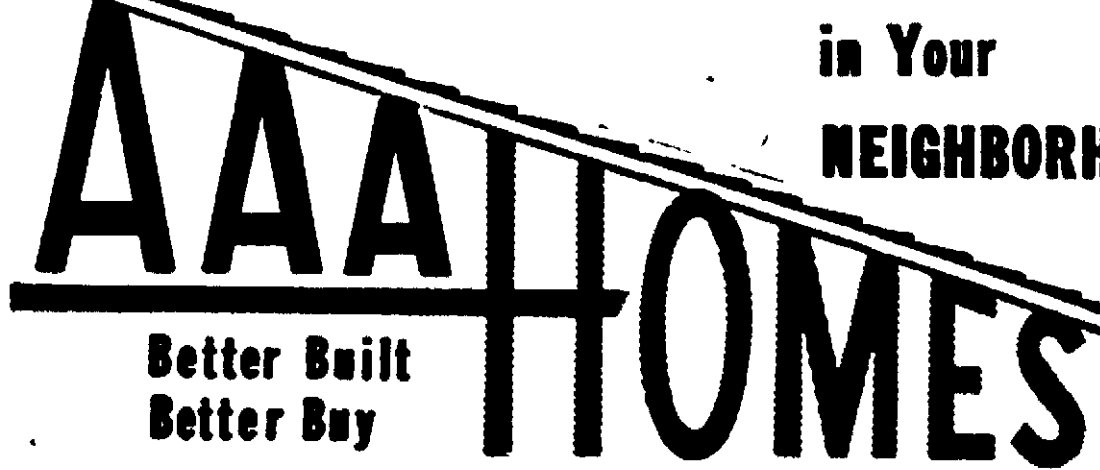

The new 16-inch water main serving the northwest section of the city will go into full operation about the end of next week. Mains soon will be laid in the Gillingham farm section west of Highway 41 with a 16-inch main and a 10-inch main branching off from it to serve that area.

The 16-inch main going out S. Park avenue will take care of expansion to the south and west in future years, he mentioned.

Water Gets 'Red Carpet' Service At Neenah Plant

From Lake to Faucet Steps In Purification Outlined

Neenah — A drop of water passing from the lake through the water plant and into your home gets the "red carpet" service often thought of in connection with visiting foreign diplomats and governmental protocol. Open house at the water plant will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

At every stop along the way it receives special attention, all designed in making it as pure a drop of water as can be imagined. It makes no difference whether that drop enters through the 1,600 foot intake pipe that stretches out into Lake Winnebago or from the Fox river channel. Most water though, is taken from the lake.

All water passes into a 17 million gallon raw water reservoir where chlorine is added at the rate of not more than 20 pounds per million gallons of water to destroy harmful bacteria. Most of this chlorine disappears as the water passes through the purification process.

Five centrifugal pumps then lift this water from the lake level to an elevation where it will flow through the entire plant by gravity. These pumps can push through 8-300,000 gallons in a day toward the softening basin where aluminum sulphate is added. This gathers the dirt together as well as any suspended materials in the water and assists in the softening process.

Softens Water

The two softening basins with a capacity of 10 million gallons a day reduce the hardness of the water from 8 to 12 grains per gallon to 3½ to 4 grains per gallon. Water discharged from these basins passes slowly through covered concrete basins where most of the suspended materials settles out. These four settling basins are located west of the main building and also have a 10 million gallon capacity.

Since an excess of lime is added to the water to get the proper hardness reaction, the excess lime is neutralized by bubbling clean flue gas up through the water. Activated carbon also is added to the water to get out some of the algae and protozoa animals, microscopic in size, which are in lake water.

These contain oils and the carbon soaks up the taste and odor-producing substances as well as the oils. Carbon may be added at one or more places, such as when the water enters the softening basins or goes to the filters.

9 Filters Now

As part of the expansion program the water plant now has nine filters, three of them being added this year. Six

Oshkosh Designer Shows Creativity in Varied Line of New Fashions

Oshkosh — "I pay no attention to trends" Oshkosh dress designer George Procknow told fashion-conscious women at an invitational showing of his new collection in the English room of the Athearn hotel Tuesday afternoon.

But Procknow's trends appear in many of his custom designs. His tweed suits feature slim skirts and long jackets with bloused backs, or peplums. A green suit with a straight finger-tip-length jacket and an orange and brown blouse, worn by Mrs. George Loper, drew special applause. Sheaths are popular with the designer, whether he is designing afternoon or evening clothes.

Over many of his sheaths George drapes a stole. Because the courtesier feels sorry for the girl who must sit in a sheath, he adds dramatic fullness to the backs of his sheaths, causing many of his hems to fish-tail in the back because of the pleating or draping. In addition to using stoles over his costumes, George has effectively used the tunic.

Procknow's liking for fabrics "orthodox or unorthodox" shows up throughout his collection. Many of his originals are designed as go-togethers. One trio combined a pink, beige and white stripe skirt with a duster of the same material and a beige princess-style dress trimmed with the striped material.

Full-Skirted Fashions
Undoubtedly his most popular models are the feminine full-skirted ones. One of the first in the show was a full-skirted floor-length black taffeta dinner dress with a white ruffled jabot. The Spanish influence is inherent in another evening dress in a sheer red and white striped material, which features a ruffled decolletage, a long torso and a full three-tiered skirt.

Another trend in evidence is the dress designer's liking for the uneven line at the hips. The gold lame top of a cream and gold stripe cocktail dress was cut at the hip line in a fringe of pointed scallops.

One of the most popular selections of the show was the sheer red print with a full skirt. The full-length sleeves were puffed just above the elbow and gathered again at the wrist, enabling the wearer to push the lower puff up to the elbow, thereby forming two graceful bell-like puffs.

Wedding Finery
All fashion shows close with a wedding gown and in this case there were two shown. Miss Jane Zipprich was preceded by two attendants in print sheaths over which were worn sheer dusters — one in orange, one in beige. The wedding gown was a slim ivory silk linen with a removable train.

For the bride who does not want a white wedding, there Mrs. A. R. Fowler, 609 Higgins avenue, has recently gown, full in back and the been pledged by Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at Texas for the slippers to show. The Technological college. Lub-bridal bouquet repeated the back. She is a junior major embroidered flower ring in elementary education.

Zephyr Gridders Meet Pacelli High

Offense-Minded St. Mary '11' Seeks Second Straight Win; Cardinals Post 2 Victories

Menasha — St. Mary's of the defensive-minded Zephyrs move back into the Wisconsin Valley area Saturday night, engaging Stevens Point Pacelli on the Pointers' gridiron. The Menashians have scored seven touchdowns in their first two games but only have a 1-1 record since their opponents came up with eight scores. In Pacelli, the Zephyrs are meeting another undefeated team but one which hadn't met the calibre of competition as the local boys. The Cardinals hosted Hortonville 28-13 and won over Adams - Friendship 21-12 last week.

9 Lettermen The Stevens Point team has about nine lettermen from last year's squad which was mauled 47-0 by the Zephyrs. Because of injuries and other factors, there were only 19 boys on the traveling team. Coach Dick Dargus had an original turnout of about 40 boys thus fall with 35 left, so in manpower he is in much better shape than a year ago. Returning boys who saw action against the Zephyrs last year include Ken Ciesewski, senior end; "Chuck" Morrill, senior tackle, a guard last year; Jerry Wojcik, junior center; George Strasser, Bob Ryskowski and Fred Parrish, backs, and John Yetter, fullback, who was a starting end a season ago.

Offensive Lineup The offensive lineup has Bill Tuscka and Ciesewski at ends; Morrill and Norb Klepinski, tackles; Andy Kurz and Dick Rudolph, guards; Wojcik, center; Tom Tepp, quarterback; Strasser and Ryskowski, halfbacks; and Yetter, fullback.

Oshkosh State Tries to Square League Record

Oshkosh — Oshkosh State college will try to square its Wisconsin College conference record at 1-1 when it plays the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee at the latter's Pears field Saturday afternoon. After besting Northland college in a non-league starter, the Titans were downed 8-0 by Eau Claire in their home inaugural last Saturday. Milwaukee beat Moorhead, Minn. 13-6 in a non-conference test last week. Neenah quarterback Tom Malchow, who missed the Eau Claire game because of an injury, is scheduled to return to the lineup. The Titans blanked the Cardinals 22-0 in their meeting at Oshkosh last fall.

Carton Miehle, Research Vie For Loop Title

Marathon Crown At Stake in Test At Jefferson Field

Menasha — Research and Development and Carton Miehle collide for the championship of the Marathon Softball league at 6 p.m. tonight at Jefferson.

The contest concludes a long season which began early last May.

Research won undisputed possession of the first round championship while Miehle won the second half chase concluded this week, with 10 straight wins. In clinching the title, Miehle beat Industrial Relations, defending champion, which had only one loss going into the contest.

Doug Wiatrowski is the probable pitcher for Research and Don Brethauer hurls for Miehle. In their regular season meetings, Miehle turned in a 3-0 win during the first week of the campaign and copped 10-2 in a makeup a week ago.

Research lost to Relations in the playoff for last year's championship.

Archer Bags Doe On His Birthday

Neenah — Dr. Russ Geiger, 116 W. Columbian avenue, bagged a 90-pound doe with his bow and arrow Thursday — on his birthday — near Manawa. The neck shot dropped the deer on the spot at about 25 yards. The deer was the fifth for Geiger, who is a member of the Winnebago Archers and National Bowhunters association.

Twin City Collegians Slated for Action in Saturday Grid Tests

Wiesner Scheduled for Fullback Duty in UW Game; Millar, Courtney Play for Michigan

Menasha — Just about every college football team in the land will have played its Crosse. Coach Mel Nicks is planning a drastic defensive shakeup but has stated that Gene Gries, Neenah, still will be used as linebacker. Down at Coral Gables, Fla., Vic Stenson of Menasha was ranked on the sixth team at left end after the spring practice but is listed as the No. 1 kickoff man. His Miami team opens against Tulane tonight.

Down at Madison's Camp Randall stadium, Tom Wiesner, Neenah junior, is expected to see plenty of action at fullback for the Badgers. Coach Milt Bruhn said Thursday that Wiesner, who is better at covering kicks, will start if the Badgers kick off while Ed Hart will be the starting fullback if UW receives.

Two more Neenah boys are scheduled for action when Michigan Tech opens its home season against Northern Michigan at Houghton Saturday afternoon.

Carleton - Ripon Bill Millar, co-captain and right halfback, was forced to leave last weekend's game at Winona, Minn., because of an injury and his weekend status is questionable. Dave Courtney has been nominated by Coach Omer LeJeunesse to start at one guard spot. Tech beat Winona and lost to Manakato in its first two games.

Twin Citians will be on opposite sides of the line in the Carleton - Ripon game Saturday. Former St. Mary ace Dick Montanari will quarterback Ripon while Ed Meyer, Jim Miller and Gene Schultz of Neenah also are slated for action. Don Scheel, who moved to Neenah a couple of years ago, is a starting tackle on the Carleton team and is one of the country's top small-college punters. Last year against the Redmen he averaged 51 yards per kick.

St. Olaf - Cornell Another ex-St. Mary gridder, Herb Roedel, again will start at guard for Marquette in Saturday night's test against Detroit at Milwaukee. Former Neenah mentor Tom Porter attempts to guide his St. Olaf squad to its second straight win at Cornell college. Porter's Oles blanked Beloit 28-0 last week. Quarterback Denny Davis of Neenah set up one score with a long pass. Up at De Pere, St. Norbert has a week off and will con-

Damage to Each
House Estimated
At About $1,000

Oshkosh — Damage estimated at about $1,000 each has been done by vandals to two unoccupied houses on Highway 47 just south of County Trunk P. Sheriff Charles L. Lowry reported today.

Complaints about the vandalism were made Thursday afternoon by George Schwarzbauer, 92 Foster court, Appleton, owner of one of the homes. The other house is owned by A. C. Sieckman, Bartlesville, Okla.

The Schwarzbauer home is on the west side of the road while Sieckman's is on the east side. The Schwarzbauer home has been vacant for 14 years. All the windows have been broken and sashes and doors ruined. Doors have been knocked off hinges and all the panels smashed. Window sashes have been smashed out of the frames and partitions between rooms smashed out and porch posts knocked out so that the porch roof is caving in.

A vegetable garden planted south of the house this spring has been denuded and a large cabinet within the house demolished.

Windows, doors and walls in the Sieckman house have been damaged. Holes were knocked in the brick exterior, one being "large enough to drive a truck through" on east side of house the complaint indicated. The front

Red Cross Chapter Picks 2 Directors

Menasha Group Presents Awards
To Volunteers, Hears Reports

Menasha — Two new directors were elected at the annual meeting of the Menasha Red Cross chapter at the Menasha High school activities room Thursday night.

Elected to posts were Mrs. John Klein and Mrs. Charles Ploudre.

Re-elected for 2-year terms were Mrs. B. R. Pawlowski, Mrs. Carl Nebel, M. J. Gegan and James Howley.

Awards Presented
Linus Pfankuch, chairman of the board, presented awards to volunteers who had completed more than 80 hours of service in the last year. They included Mrs. Hugo Erdman, Mrs. Clifford Fahrback, Mrs. Gerhardt Frank, Mrs. Milton Gaertner, Mrs. Melvin Grant, Mrs. Nebel, Mrs. Pawlowski, Mrs. William Platt, Mrs. Ploudre, Mrs. Harold Schlack, Mrs. Carl Snyder, Mrs. John Teeple, Mrs. William Wiegand, Mrs. Ben Winarski and Roger Wright. Most of the hours were accumulated by Gray Ladies. Wright is a Gray Man and Mrs. Wiegand assists in the chapter office.

The blood program report by William Platt showed that 746 pints were collected at bloodmobile visits when the Menasha chapter was in charge of arrangements, 28 over the chapter quota.

Pfankuch reported on first aid and water safety, pointing out the chapter had sponsored 27 classes in water safety and 10 in first aid during the last year.

Carl Snyder, reporting as a disaster chairman, said his committee had met with the Civil Defense director to coordinate efforts of the two groups.

Junior Program
Miss Carole Quella, executive secretary of the chapter, said the Junior Red Cross program in Menasha was hampered by a lack of chairman. However, 395 gift boxes had been sent out.

Treasurer James Hawley said the fund drive had brought in $7,884.46 of which $3,249.19 was sent to the national Red Cross. "Locally we retained $4,635.27," Howley explained, "and since our estimated budget is $5,977, we will be very cramped for finances this year."

The home service report by Mrs. Nebel indicated that 80 cases were handled in addition to numerous requests for information. Cash loans and gifts to servicemen amounted to $517.58 and $13 to veterans.

Mrs. Pawlowski, chairman of volunteer services, said the chapter had 110 certified volunteers, 94 of whom were actively engaged in Red Cross volunteer work in the last fiscal year. Their hours totaled 4,114.

The new board of directors will have its first meeting Oct. 8 at the Red Cross office in the post office building. Officers will be elected at that time.

At Convention

Neenah — Upton X. Furman Courtney court, chiropractor, will attend the convention of the Wisconsin Chiropractic association being held at the Lorraine hotel, Madison this weekend.

Measuring the Course for the annual Kiwanis bicycle Road-E-O, scheduled at the Menasha swimming pool grounds Saturday, are William Ciske, Menasha policeman, and Robert Vanevenhoven, recreation director. Menasha youngsters, 8 to 16 years old, will be eligible to participate in the event. Registrations will open at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at the pool parking lot. The Kiwanians have over $130 in prizes for contestants.

Russians Handled Tour Better Than U. S., Charlie Says in Retrospect

BY CHARLES HOUSE

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Pelopourri on Khrushchev: Maybe you don't care, but perhaps you ought to know that the correct pronunciation of Nikita is "Nikito," and the proper way to say Khrushchev is with a throaty "Khhruss-shof." Many news-papers, particularly in the state of Iowa from which I have just returned, have referred to the Soviet premier as "Mr. K." This is not correct. If his name is to be abbreviated in this manner, he should be specified as "Mr. KH." Or don't you want to do as the Russians do?

Mrs. KH cannot be correctly said to be Mrs. Khrushchev, for her name bears and deserves the feminine version of that name, which is Khrushcheva. . . She should not be referred to as Mrs. Khrushchev, but "Madame Khrushcheva." For three days I have observed this lady and I have decided she is not a dumpling-type, gray lady whom one thinks of as a kitchen drudge. No, sir. No. Ma'am. This lady is bright.

Madame smiles virtually all of the time—a placid, docile, dull sort of smile which does not radiate over television as it does in reality. . . She is a very impressive lady with a remarkable personality. Her smile is warm, sincere and apparently a real one. Madame speaks English much better than one would think. She has shown this many times since I have been on the Khrushchev trail, often asking questions in English which would be considered very complicated by those who do not have a good command of our language. I have not yet heard her speak a sentence which was not grammatical.

Excellent Grammar

On one occasion I heard Madame ask in perfect grammar though with an accent, this question: "From where does this meat come?" She was asking of hot dogs. After observing her remarkable husband, I am convinced the Soviet premier has command of much more English than he pretends. Once—only once—did I hear him employ English, and that was an obvious device. When he came into a room one day, he said in thick dialect, "Goot Mornyengm." It pleased his audience immensely.

I do believe this capable fellow does, indeed, understand much more of our language than he pretends. I hope and trust our state department knows this and does not whisper naughty things in English within his hearing.

On the Garst farm, our telephones were set up in the hog house. This was apparently the best place for reporters to get their stories back to their respective papers, but it could have been the opinion Mr. Garst had of us who bothered him so badly. On the big day in Coon Rapids, Mr. Garst struck at reporters, kicked at them and threatened some of us—I was in that group—with a corn stalk.

Fire Truck Damaged While Answering Call

Menasha — The right front bumper and part of the cab of a Menasha fire truck was damaged in an accident at the corner of Racine and Main streets this morning.

Fire Chief Edward Heim said the truck skidded on wet pavement into a light post when the driver tried to avoid a motorist who had stopped his car in the middle of the street.

Damage was not extensive enough to delay the truck in answering a call to the Francis Luka home, 528 Fourth street. An overheated oil space heater caused no damage.

the subject of an international story and I accepted his show of temper and placed it in the category where it belonged. He was angry and fairly so.

The state department failed miserably in handling the Affaire Khrushchev. The tour of the Garst farm was ridiculous—a shabby event which had all of us ashamed, but avidly seeking our story for the day. . . The situation was so bad—(there were perhaps 600 reporters chasing the group)—that if a reporter happened to be one foot closer to the Soviet premier than any other reporter, he had an exclusive if Mr. Khrushchev happened to say something of moment to anyone.

Suppose someone got into my way as I was trying to follow the man from Russia, and I tripped. Supposing he then said to a farm hand that he intended to purchase American tractors for some certain reason, and that Russians hoped to use more tractors than guns. Perhaps only one reporter heard this and kept it to himself. How would I, as a reporter, fare? The big story of the day would be missed because I was out of earshot when it was said.

Premier at Fault

Partly, it was the fault of the premier who was often guilty of saying something of note on small occasions. Wisconsin's one-time Gov. Julius Hell often did the same thing. In some tiny village somewhere, he would make a pronouncement which would affect, sooner or later, everyone in the state. Reporters tried hard to cure Mr. Hell of this habit, but we never succeeded. It is my opinion that the premier should have known better than to issue great statements in small circumstances. . .

Several times I attempted to get what we call a "side-bar story" which was, as you know, my assignment on this occasion. I talked to reporters from the USSR, but they were remarkably unfriendly. The ones I talked to pretended only a little command of English, but it is not conceivable that monolingual reporters would have been chosen to cover the tour. (In the U. S. one Russian reporter kept on saying he couldn't understand English all the while I drank with him, but when he thought I had left, I heard him call to the bartender in perfect English, "May I have one more beer please?" He had not a trace of accent).

In Coon Rapids, most of the populace had gathered at one point to see Mr. Khrushchev pass through and a lot of small hearts were broken when he was taken through an entirely different part of town. . . That also is the fault of the state department whose failure to contact local authorities served as a disservice to the people of the United States. When Mr. Nixon was in Russia, if I may echo the almost constant remarks of Mr. Khrushchev, "The Russians did it better."

New Meeting Site
The town of Grand Chute town hall was set as the new meeting place for the commission on the first Thursday of March, June, September and December. Before this the commission met at sites chosen by invitation or alphabetical order.

A request for representatives and right to a proxy vote in absence of a voting official was turned over to a by-law committee for study.

Contract Draft
Drafting and provisions of a contract for Schelle were delayed Thursday afternoon when the planner's legal commission sought additional information.

Schellie on Aug. 24 agreed to fulfill certain agreements in his proposal for planning. The lawyers want to incorporate Schellie's agreements in the contract. He is being contacted for the information.

Another meeting of the legal commission will be set when the data is received.

Conduct, Drunkenness

Beverly J. Kappell, 22, of 14109 N. Bennett street, was jailed this morning when she couldn't pay a $20 fine for drunkenness and disorderly conduct levied by Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmlege.

Miss Kappell was taken into custody and jailed about 10 p.m. Thursday after she broke a window, tore down a venetian blind and created a disturbance in Maggie's tavern, Stephenville. County police were called when Magdaline Samson, owner, could not stop the disturbance.

During the disturbance, Miss Kappell broke into a church women's group meeting at the tavern, disrupting it and using obscene language, police said.

16-Year-Old Vandal Record Sent to State

A 16-year-old Waupaca county boy, whose residence has fluctuated from Outagamie to Waupaca county during his 2-year record of criminal, vandalism and traffic offenses, Thursday was placed in the state department of public welfare's care until he is 21.

The boy will be taken to Wales reception center today and transferred to Waupesa state school for boys.

The youth's latest offense stemmed from a wild ride and a fight in Bear Creek Sept. 11 after which he and four others between 20 and 22 were taken into custody in a Shiocton bar.

Other Youths

Of the four older youths, one was released to join the service, two were placed probation for a year and one was fined $100. The owners of the bar in which the youths were found also were fined for allowing them in the bar.

Although Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmiede flayed the older youths in court, the disorderly conduct charge against them limited sentencing to a year in jail. No other charges were brought, other than loitering in a tavern against the minors.

2-Year Record

The 16-year-old's record began in 1957 with drunkenness, theft from a newspaper carrier and theft of empty beer cases; 1958, theft of empty beer cases, attempted burglary of a New London firm for which he got a year's probation, wrecking a car in which po-

Philadelphia — (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick today commended pitcher Humberto Robinson for reporting an attempted bribe.

Robinson's action was the first report of a bribe since 1944 when Emil "Dutch" Leonard of the Washington Senators told of being contacted by gamblers. Other unsuccessful bribe attempts were made in 1922 and 1924, the latter reported by "Heinie" Sand, also of the Phillies.

Bears May be Looking Past Packers to Colts

Bruins Must Meet Baltimore Twice In Next Month

BY ART DALEY
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Green Bay — Could the Bears be looking "past" their meeting with the Packers at City stadium Sunday afternoon?

The Halasmen play the Colts and Rams, generally considered to be the title favorites along with the Bears, in four of their first six games. The Bruins meet the Colts after Green Bay—in Baltimore Saturday night, Oct. 3.

Two sources suggested that the Bears might have the Colts on their minds: Braven Dyer, in the Los Angeles Times, wrote the other day:

"George Halas has his Chicago Bears off to their fastest start in years. Why? Probably because they face the world champion Baltimore Colts twice before Oct. 19. Odd scheduling sends the mid-way monsters to Baltimore on Oct. 3 (night) and rematches them in the windy city on Oct. 18. If either club wins both games it could settle the Western division right then."

Bruce Morrison, a veteran pro football writer with the Chicago Sun-Times, presented this thought Thursday:

"In the second game of the season, the Bears take on the Colts at Baltimore in what well may be the most crucial contest of their season. Halas reasons that his lads may be dwelling upon the possibilities of upsetting the Colts and neglect achieving a fine edge for the Pack."

3-Game Skein
The Bears have a 3-game winning streak going over the Packers, not counting the non-leaguer this season. Since the Packers downed the Bruins, 21-17, in the dedication opener here in 1957, the Bears won the replay in Chicago 21-14. Last year, the Bears whipped our forces, 34-20, and 24-10.

Four key figures in Sunday's clash played at the University of Arkansas — tackle Fred Williams of the Bears and Dave Hanner, Lamar McHan and Lew Carpenter of the Packers. Mc Han and Carpenter were sophomores when Williams and Hanner were All-American seniors.

Defensive halfback Vic Zucco and linebacker Chuck Howley, both Bear veterans, may miss Sunday's game due to injuries. Linebacker Joe Fortunato, who was hurt tackling Jimmy Brown in the Cleveland game last Saturday night, will be ready for the Packers.

In Privacy
The Packers worked in the privacy of the stadium this morning. And there'll be another workout there Saturday morning. The team returned from its training base in Petaluma at 7 p.m. Thursday and went directly to a supper club for a meal and a meeting.

All is quiet hereabouts — except for the moans of the folks trying to get tickets for Sunday's $2.50 sellout.

The hard-luck twins of the opening round of Midwest conference football games seek Dame Fortune's elusive favors again here Saturday.

goes beyond the teams' mutual unhappiness of last Saturday.

Small Squads
The scarlet and black of Grinnell and the blue and white of Lawrence are expected to be waving on the lower reaches of the conference pennant race pole.

Both clubs are small in number, with rosters totalling close to 30 men when all are fit. And, neither team is big, physically. The Pioneer squad list boasts no man who is able to make the scale read 200 pounds or more.

The Vikings have a few 200-pounders but no regulars who are more than a couple of milk shakes and a pizza over that mark.

Both revealed more defense than offense last weekend in dropping their openers. The Pioneers were particularly impressive.

They held Monmouth to 95 total yards, 57 rushing and 38 passing, and just six first

Logan Returns to Lineup as Lew Burdette Faces Phils

Braves Begin Crucial Set At Home

BY JACK HAND

Milwaukee — Milwaukee plays its last three games at home against the cellar-dwelling Phillies. Injured Johnny Logan is ready to reclaim his shortstop job. Billy Bruton may be able to play. Lew Burdette, Warren Spahn and Bob Buhl, the big three of the staff, are due in that order. Los Angeles, tied with the Braves for the National league lead, must finish on the road.

4 Days of Rest
For these reasons, the Braves are 5 to 8 favorites to win their third straight pennant.

Burdette (21-14) has had four days of rest to get ready for tonight's series opener at County stadium.

Long before game time (8 p.m.), the Braves should know whether a victory would give them the undisputed lead or just continue the tie. The Dodgers were to play a day game at Chicago.

With only three games to go, the possibility of a best-of-3 playoff is very strong. It would be the third in league history, all involving the Dodgers.

Eddie Sawyer, whose Phils have given the Braves fits all season, has his best pitchers ready. Don Cardwell (9-10) goes tonight. Robin Roberts (15-16) will pitch Saturday and Jim Owens (12-11) Sunday.

Logan Anxious

Logan is anxious to get back into the starting lineup. He played briefly in Wednesday's 5-4 defeat at Pittsburgh, but missed most of six games due to an infected toe. "I played with a gash in my leg, wearing a protector in 1957," he said. "Why shouldn't I play because of a little thing that started with an ingrown hair."

Manager Fred Haney wants to double-check his list of crippled at game time. However, he is expected to start Logan at short and move Felix Mantilla to second base. Mantilla did a great job filling in for Logan. Bobby Avila, who has been playing second, is handicapped in the field by a knee injury. He may be benched. Bruton twisted an ankle in Pittsburgh Monday and still is on the doubtful list.

Some of the Braves worked out briefly Thursday, an open date in the schedule. Joe Adcock who went into a slump at Pittsburgh after a hot September, had asked for extra work. So did Logan and Mantilla.

12 Sooner Gridders Violently Ill After Eating in Chicago

Chicago — (AP) — A dozen members of the University of Oklahoma football team, rated No. 2 in the nation, fell violently ill Thursday night after eating a salad in a Chicago night club.

They included five members of the squad's starting team. Assistant coach Jimmy Harris, who accompanied the players to the club, also was stricken.

It could not be readily determined how severely the team would suffer, because of the incident, in its first encounter against a Big Ten team since 1939, Northwestern, rated No. 10, Saturday in suburban Evanston. The game will be televised nationally.

Coach "Bud" Wilkinson had permitted players an evening out to "take their minds off the game and let them relax."

Wilkinson, several members of his coaching staff, and two players remained at the hotel while 38 other players and coaching aides came to Chicago to dinner.

Wilkinson was described as "heartsick" at the news. Six of the 12 were taken to a hospital where their stomachs were pumped out. They were co-captain Bobby Boyd, starting quarterback; Co-Captain Gilmer Lewis, starting left tackle; Jim Davis, starting center; Bob Scholl, No. 2 center; Bob Page, No. 3 quarterback, and Paul Benien, No. 3 fullback; Bill Watts, No. 3 right tackle.

Stanford Passing Attack Will Test Badger Defense

Madison — (AP) — Wisconsin will have to check once-beaten Stanford's passing attack to win its football opener Saturday at Camp Randall stadium.

The Indians almost passed their way to victory over Oregon in their opener a week ago, dropping the game, 28-27. Their all-veteran lineup includes Capt. Christian Burford, a senior end who caught 45 passes last year.

Wisconsin—which finished 1-1 last year—is ranked eighth in the Associated Press preseason poll. Last year's record included a loss to Iowa and a tie with Ohio State.

Coach Milt Bruhn is expected to start an all letterman lineup if Wisconsin receives the opening kickoff. Otherwise he plans to start sophomore Jim Bakken instead of his No. 1 quarterback, Dale Hackbart.

Last Win in '46
Bruhn's teams in three seasons have met a West coast opponent only once, losing that game to Southern California three years ago, 13 to 6. The Badgers over the years have won only two of 11 games with West coast competition, a the last time over California in 1946.

Assistant Coach LaVern Van Dyke, who scouted the Indians in their opener, said they have the "stuff to pull an upset. He said the team has a fine passing attack and is fair to good on the ground.

Bruhn isn't worried about his own offensive game. "We'll move the ball all right," he said, "the question is how well we can stop them from moving it."

Hackbart possibly won't see action because of a knee injury.

3 Won't Play
Three other lettermen — all linemen — definitely won't play due to injuries. They include tackle Terry Huxhold and guards Gerald Kulcinski and Charlie Sprague.

Because of the injuries the

It's Don Drysdale, working in a jinx park, for Los Angeles and Lew Burdette, facing a club he hasn't been able to beat since May, for Milwaukee as the National league pennant race barrels into the final weekend looking like it'll never end.

Drysdale was to face the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field this afternoon for the Dodgers, deadlocked with Milwaukee for first place with three to play.

Night Game

The Braves, playing a night game, will have either a psychological lift or a grim reminder — depending on the Dodger result on the scoreboard — when they go against last-place Philadelphia at Milwaukee.

The late San Francisco Giants could make it a 3-way tie for first. Going into their final three games at St. Louis tonight, the Giants are hobbling with a 5-game losing string, their longest of the season. To gain a tie, the Giants will have to sweep the Cardinals and pray the Dodgers and Braves each lose twice.

Chicago's Cubs, who crashed the Giants' hopes with a 2-game sweep, could be just as chilling for the Dodgers. Only the Cubs (10-9) and Cincinnati (13-9) have an edge over Los Angeles for the season.

Drysdale (17-13) has only a 2-3 season record against the fifth place Cubs. And he managed to win just one of his first five decisions at Wrigley field in his 4-year career.

The Cubs were to start Glen Hobbie (16-13), their biggest winner since Bob Rush won 17 in 1952. The young right-hander was 0-2 against the Dodgers.

Burdette has lost three straight to the Phillies since May 22 and stands 3-3 against 'em for the year.

Vikes, Grinnell Set to Open Harrier Season

2 of Lawrence's 4 Lettermen are Slowed by Injuries

The Lawrence college cross country team will open its 1959 dual meet season here Saturday against Grinnell, last year's Midwest conference champion.

The event will be run on the Reid Municipal Golf course, beginning at 11 a.m.

Two of the four lettermen on the 10-runner Vike squad are on the doubtful list for Saturday. Ron Simon — who finished sixth in the MC test in '58 — and "Chuck" Collins both are victims of ligament troubles.

Senior Guard Gil Sutherland will be in the Lawrence college lineup when the Vikes welcome Grinnell for a Whiting field game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Lawrence Plays Host To Grinnell Saturday

Several solid goal line stands helped Lawrence allow Knox's big backs just eight points in the 3-7 Sinsler victory here. However, Knox had a 280-171 yardage bulge over the losers.

Passing Sputters

It's in their sputtering offense—especially the passing phase of it—that the Lawrence team looked poorest Saturday. Coach Bernie Heselson has drilled hard on the aerial game this week with only fair results.

Quarterback Jim Schulze completed no passes in seven attempts Saturday and Heselson feels the former all-Wisconsin high schooler can hit targets better than he did against Knox. In Wednesday's drill Viking receivers were having their troubles holding Schulze's hard, accurate tosses.

Schulze was throwing short flings frequently Wednesday. It is felt that he might be wiser to sharpen up his percentage by tossing shortles rather than gambling on long-gainers.

There are no major injuries in the Lawrence camp.

Sore Ankles

Neenah sophomore guard Mel Bayer still is favoring a sore ankle as is soph end Tom Walker. Bill Meyer, another former Neenah High glider, has been coming along well and may start in Walker's spot at offensive left end. The 170-pound Meyer is a former all-Mid-Eastern conference performer.

Guard Pete Thomas and tackle Dan Brink and Darro Glockner—all sophomores—have also shown up well in practice. Thomas (190-pounder) may have earned himself a starting defensive guard spot. Brink impressed against Knox.

Lawrence lost to Grinnell, 25-8, last year but still has an 11-4 bulge in its all-time series with the Pioneers.

With 145-pound tailback star John Copeland graduated, Grinnell has gone to the T-formation this season.

Lowry Back

The only Grinnell backfield letterman returning, Jim Lowry (195) may not be able to go full-speed Saturday. Fullback Lowry, who gained 426 yards in 1958, starred for Viking Assistant Coach Don Boya in prep school in Chicago. Jim was injured in the Monmouth game.

Co-Captain Bob Woito (165 pounds) is the Grinnell quarterback. He completed 11 of 19 passes for 85 yards against Monmouth. Ron Sandler, 170-pound sophomore, is the probable left half starter while John Hartung (180) soph may take Lowry's place at fullback.

Jack Woods, 175-pound junior, is the right half. A defensive stickout against Monmouth was 180-pound junior Dick Barbour. Bob Peterson, starting his fifth season, is Grinnell's coach.

Lawrence, where Heselson is in his twenty-first season, uses both the coach's old favorite single wing and the T-formation against Knox. The 17-yard touchdown run by Schulze came off the T.

When Lawrence is in its T-slick ball-handler Bob Landis, Appleton sophomore, is liable to be the quarterback with Schulze at left half or vice-versa. Landis has also proven himself a good single wing blocker.

More of the practice time thus far has been devoted to the T-formation for which the light but reasonably fast Vikings seem well suited.

Calis MU-Detroit Game a Toss-Up

'Liz' Blackburn Fears Titans' Big Linemen and Fast Backs

Milwaukee — (U) — Coach Lisle Blackburn rates his Marquette football team at no more than an even choice to beat Detroit in the second game of the year here Saturday night.

"They're as big as we are in the line, if not bigger," the Marquette coach said Thursday. "They have faster backs in Bruce Maher, Jim Post and Ray Davis than we have. We are an even choice at best."

Marquette turned in a good performance last week when it lost the opening game to Pittsburgh while Detroit was beating George Washington, 39-6.

The coach believes that Detroit's speed will be a headache to what he calls his "slow moving" Warriors. He admits, however, that his front wall is heavier than that of the Detroit team and that should be able to stop some of the Detroit plays before they can get rolling.

Marquette's passers Pete Hall and his understudy Bill Johnson looked impressive in Thursday's drills. Blackburn had his squad alternately running against Detroit defenses and then switching and throwing Detroit plays at it. He also gave the squad a long drill on covering kickoffs.

Fullback Frank Mestnik appears to be the only doubtful starter. He has been suffering with a hip injury.

Round Table Favored in 'Dream' Race

Meets Hillsdale, Sword Dancer At Aqueduct

New York — (U) — Take the nation's two top older horses. Add the rank 3-year-old. Put them on the same track at a distance each prefers and with weights favorable to all and you have a dream horse race.

That is just what the $100,000 added Woodward at Aqueduct figures to be Saturday when Round Table, Hillsdale and Sword Dancer hook up at 1 1/2 miles under weight-for-age conditions. (CBS will televise the race from 3:30-4 p. m., CDT.)

Round Table, a 5-year-old from Travis Kerr's Oklahoma-owned stables, and Hillsdale, a rangy 4-year-old from the barns of C. W. "Catfish" Smith, each pack 126 pounds.

Sword Dancer, best of the 3-year-olds out of Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade stable, picks up 120.

4-5 Favorite

Round Table is the probable 4-5 favorite with Hillsdale the 5-2 second choice and Sword Dancer third at 4-1 in the early line.

The combined 1959 record of the three shows earnings of $1,219,224-50 with 24 victories, seven seconds and one third in 34 starts.

And if it comes down to riding skill, there is little to choose among the three jockeys. Eddie Arcaro will pilot Sword Dancer. Willie Shoemaker, will be in Round Table's saddle. Tommy Barrow will ride Hillsdale.

Golden Gate Test Led by Fleck, Rudolph

San Francisco — (U) — A bunched field of golfers—24 of them under par in their first round—closely chased co-leaders Jack Fleck and Mason Rudolph today in the second round of the Golden Gate championships.

Fleck and Rudolph with 67s held just a 1-stroke advantage after the opening round of this $40,000 tournament Thursday.

Playing with a sore shoulder, Fleck toured the foggy 6,628-yard course in 4-under-par 35-32.

Rudolph, 25-year-old former National Junior and Western Amateur champion, matched Fleck with 34-33-67.

Pressing the leaders were Mike Souhak and Frank Stranahan with 68s.

In a cluster of 60s were Jim Ferrier, Art Wall, Jr., Fred Hawkins, Tommy Bolt, Don Whitt, Jim Ferree, Bob Goalby, Ernie Vossler and George Schneider.

LSU Meets Texas Christian, Auburn Plays Tennessee '11

By the Associated Press

Those "easy openers" on the first full Saturday of the college football season have gone the way of the 5 cent cigar, nickel beer and unlimited substitution.

Don't believe it? Ask Oklahoma or Northwestern. They play each other Saturday. Auburn will verify it. The Tigers open against a tough Tennessee team.

Plays Kentucky

The nation's No. 1 team in the current Associated Press poll, Louisiana State, had a Dickens of a time beating Rice, 26-3, last week, and Saturday must take on Texas Christian, the 1958 Southwest conference champ and one of three favorites to repeat.

Fourth-ranked Mississippi, a co-threat with Auburn for LSU's SEC title, takes on Kentucky at Lexington in a night game.

Georgia Tech is at home to Southern Methodist (No. 4) as the Mustangs begin their season with the burden on passer Don Meredith and halfback Glynn Gregory.

Fifth-ranked Clemson, atop the Atlantic Coast conference after its victory over North Carolina last week, takes on Virginia.

Coach Dale Hall, successor to Red Blaik at Army, has Boston college on his docket as the Cadets opener. Halfback Bob Anderson and "lonesome end" Bill Carpenter are the crux of arguments for the Cadets No. 7 ranking.

Top games in the east find Rutgers and Princeton renewing college football's oldest rivalry at Princeton: William and Mary is at Navy and Ivy league favorite Dartmouth entertains Holy Cross.

They'll Do It Every Time

Time Out with Mike Drew

"How," somebody asked, "can Green Bay West be picked to win the Fox River Valley conference championship with a little squirt just 5 feet, 5 inches tall and 118 pounds playing quarterback?"

The question seemed a good one.

The answer is that the Wildcats appear to be so strong everywhere else in their lineup that what looks like a QB weakness can be overcome.

West's pint-size signal-caller is JV-graduate Pat Hearden, nephew of former St. Norbert, Packer and University of Wisconsin Coach Tom Hearden.

In a practice session several days ago Pat was fading back to pass and was being rushed hard by a big Wildcat line including 6-4, 225-pounder Don "Moose" Hendrickson.

"For gosh sake, pass the ball," yelled Coach John Bloedorn, possibly fearing for Hearden's life.

"I can't see anybody but Hendrickson," the little fellow shouted back.

It appears that former Appleton High grid star Dave "Butch" Verkulien is through with football, at least for this season.

Dave, a junior at Miami (Fla.) university was "red-shirted" as a Miami sophomore last year (he saw only scrimmage action). Determined to make the varsity this season, he worked hard on a construction job during the summer, so hard in fact that it looks as if he has developed a heart condition.

Appleton's Bob Eggert is in the process of making the big change from center to offensive guard. As a center at Appleton High and during his frosh year at Miami Bob did most of his blocking at the line of scrimmage. Now, his duties include pulling out of the line to lead interference.

Neenah's Kent Simerson and Menasha's Vic Stenson are fighting for Miami varsity berths while Menasha's Tom Stepanski is on the Huron freshman squad.

A couple of former Fox River Valley conference grid stars are on the Marquette university freshman team. They are Oshkosh's Paul Poeschl, who earned his frosh numerals at Notre Dame last year, and Green Bay's Eldon Bloedorn.

Ray Mueller, who managed Burlington's Three-I league Bees to a sixth place finish this summer, has been notified by the parent Chicago Cubs' organization that he will not be back to manage the Bees in 1960.

Mueller, one of the finest men I've met in baseball, seemingly was the victim of a lack of material at Burlington.

Ray spent over 13 years in the big leagues as a catcher. He served as a coach for the big league Cubs in 1957 and managed Pueblo of the Class A Western league in '58.

Former Neenah High and Ripon college football mentor Jerry Thompson, who left coaching to enter a Lutheran seminary in St. Paul, was interviewed at halftime of Sunday's Packer-Steeler game in Minneapolis.

Thompson said it was a great thrill to watch a former player of his, Dave Smith of Ripon, play for the Packers. (Several days later, "Smitty" was released).

Speaking of Minnesota, two former FRVC assistant grid pilots have grants-in-aid to do work in the University of Minnesota mathematics department.

One is former Appleton High assistant John Landis, the other is Don Annis, grid assistant at Manitowoc high in 1958.

Jerry Liska Picks UW Over Stanford, NU to Top Sooners

BY JERRY LISKA

Chicago — (U) — World Series confusion, or not, the old Midwest Football Seer dons his helmet for his first crack at the line, like who's the winners, dad.

Northwestern 14, Oklahoma 13 — They've said for a long while Oklahoma wouldn't be such a world-beater if the Sooners played in the Big Ten. We'll vote for Ara Parseghian, who finally may have the horses he needs, including two exceptional prancers in halfback Ron Burton and quarterback Dick Thornton.

Illinois 7, Indiana 6 — This first Big Ten contest of the season brings together a pair of apparent have-nots. Without injured Johnny Easterbrook, tiny veteran quarterback, the Illini easily might stumble. Phil Dickens, who surprised everybody with his Hoosiers last year, has speeded his single wing with the winged T. His personnel is green but speedy and may give the big Illini line a busy day.

Iowa 19, California 13 — This won't be any replay of the last Rose Bowl game. The Big Ten champion Hawkeyes haven't any Randy Duncan or Willie Fleming to bewilder the Bears.

Ohio State 18, Duke 12 — Woody Hayes seldom takes non-conference games seriously.

Wisconsin 20, Stanford 7 — That's if the Badgers are as loaded as everybody thinks they are and quarterback Dale Hackbart is healthy.

Michigan 14, Missouri 7 — New coach "Bump" Elliott has a lot to find out about his Wolverines.

Minnesota 13, Nebraska 7 — The Cornhuskers are once-tested, a little over-tested at quarterback where their use of twin signal-callers got a yelp at Texas.

Notre Dame 7, North Carolina 6 — Without injured quarterback George Izo and halfback Red Mack, Notre Dame's inexperienced Irish are in real trouble.

Marquette 14, Detroit 13 — The Warriors are no palsies, as Pitt discovered last week-end.

Michigan State 13, Texas A & M 12 — The Spartans, although last in the Big Ten last year, have won 15 straight non-conference games.

Get Ticker Tape Parade; Landis Tests Leg in Detroit Series

Detroit — The champion Chicago White Sox, basking in the dreamy warmth of their first American league pennant since 1919, returned to baseball reality today. Buoyed by a jubilant 2-day celebration in baseball-happy Chicago, the Sox prepped for the World Series with a week-end season-ending series against Detroit.

Pierce, one of Manager Al Lopez' few disappointments in the otherwise brilliant campaign, was the pitching nominee against the fourth-place Tigers in Briggs stadium.

Pierce, rated a 20-game winner in preseason selections, has struggled with a 14-15 record.

AHS Invades North for 1st Conference Tilt

On the basis of their 20-0 non-league win over Menasha, it appears possible that the Terrors may be back in the title scrap after a so-so 1958 season. Last year's Terrors tied for fourth (with a 3-4 record) after AHS had won back-to-back championships in 1956 and 1957.

Most Games Close
Root, formerly of Kimberly, will be bidding for his first coaching victory in five tries against AHS' Ade Dillon. All of the games between the two rivals have been close, save last year's 21-7 Terror victory, in which AHS outgained North, 300 yards to 128, and held the Raiders' to 33 yards rushing. AHS won 14-10, in 1957 and 32-20 in 1956, while Root's Raiders tied Dillon's Terrors, 7-7, in '55.

North, which like AHS, uses a multiple offense, had little chance to turn it loose in its non-league game at Kaukauna. The stout Ghost defense limited the Raiders to 54 yards rushing and none passing (no completions in five tries).

Even then, North (picked for the FRVC cellar by the scribes) scored first and forced Kaukauna to rally for a 13-6 victory. Halfback John Baer — one of North's better players — picked up a loose fumble and ran 31 yards for a third-period touchdown.

Quarterback Rob Garton, who scored North's only TD against the Terrors last year, also gave Kaukauna a scare with a lengthy kick-off return. Among the other leading North players are fullback Dan Weiskopf, ends Jay Sampson and Jim Carpenter and center Dave Bach.

Dillon plans no deviations from the lineup which performed so promisingly — and at times devastatingly — against Menasha. The victory margin (20-0) was AHS' largest in the series since a 34-7 win in 1949.

And, AHS' total yardage figure — an eye-filling 341 — was the school's biggest since the 1956 team logged 357 in crushing Manitowoc in the championship game. In no other game in the two recent title years did a Terror team do as well offensively as in last Friday's display at Menasha.

Passing quarterback John Nussbaum, a rushing threat in his own right, can call on three runners who looked good against the Jays: Marv Hietpas, Dave LaViolette and Cal Kluss.

Co-Captains Named
Starting in the AHS line will be Dick Wankey and Wayne Polzin, ends; Ed Felauer and Brian Zordel, tackles; Ron Tollefson and Dick Heiss, guards; and Tom Kottke, center.

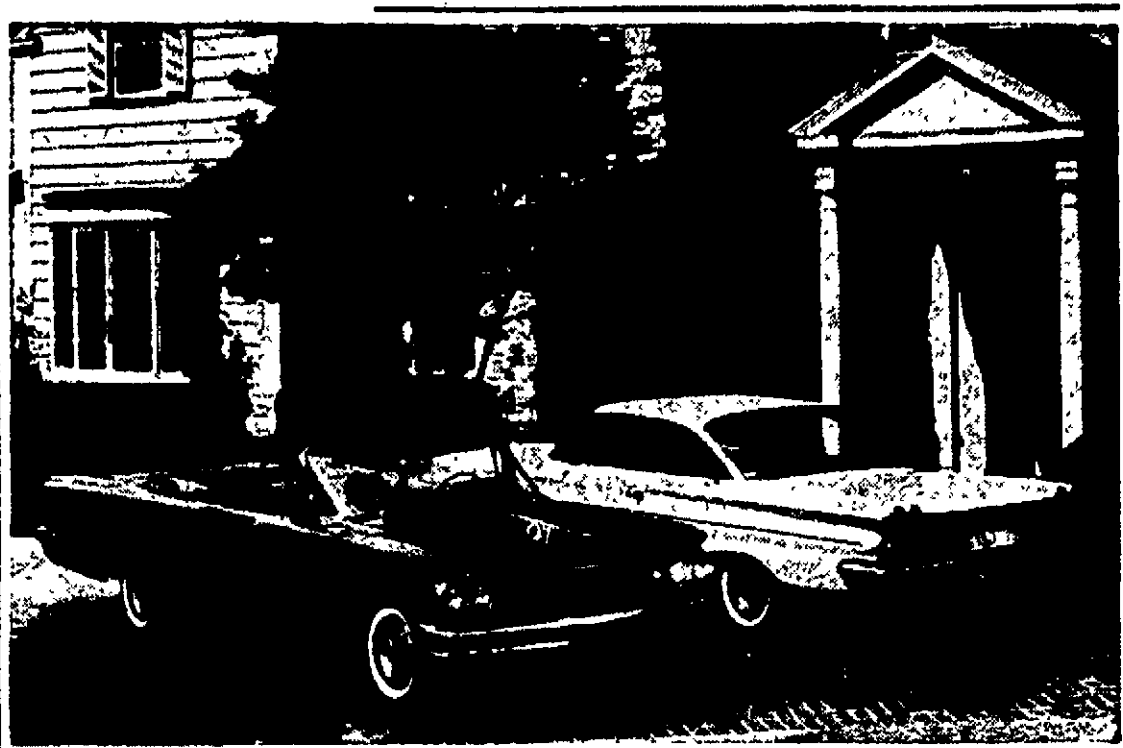

LaViolette and Kottke have been named co-captains for the game. During this week's drills, considerable time was spent on passing and in trying to improve the team's downfield blocking. The Terrors came out of the Jay game in good physical condition.

Most of the regulars lived up to Dillon's expectations in the Menasha game, and the mentor labeled the defensive end play of Dave Walter a particularly pleasant surprise.

Dillon scouted the Raiders at Kaukauna and said he was most impressed by North's defensive ability.

Wilson Loses, 7-6

Menasha High school's freshman football team opened 1959 play with a 7-6 victory over Wilson Thursday afternoon on the losers' field.

Left half "Rocky" Gmeiner scored the Bluejay touchdown on an 8-yard run in the second quarter and he also plucked for the game-winning extra point.

Wilson tallied in the third period on a 44-yard scamper by fullback Tim Kranzusch. Kranzusch was inches short on his running try for the extra point. The losers tallied again in the fourth period on a 52-yard run by halfback Dick Bunn but the play was called back because of a holding penalty.

Wilson quarterback Jim Hale was hurt in the first quarter and missed the rest of the game.

Seek to Rap Reds For Tibet Action

Ireland Wants Support for Its Proposal in UN to Brand China As Violator of Human Rights

United Nations, N.Y. — An elder brother of the exiled Dalai Lama, said in an interview in New Delhi yesterday that far more than 50,000 Tibetan irregulars still were waging rebellion against the red Chinese using knives, old guns or any other weapons they could find.

100,000 Killed

Thondup said the Chinese killed 100,000 Tibetans in recent years, including 20,000 in the uprising in the capital, Lhasa, last March. Thondup is planning to come to New York to report to the UN what he called a "true picture" of the situation in Tibet.

The Dalai Lama, Tibet's god-king who fled to India after the uprising, charged a month ago that the communist rule had cost his country 80,000 lives.

The international commission of jurists claims 65,000 Tibetans have lost their lives. Thondup said Tibetan men were being tortured and sent to concentration camps, leaving the women and children "for the Chinese to do whatever they want with them."

Two Steps

A number of UN delegations were reported awaiting word from their governments whether to rally behind the Irish proposal which involves two steps:

1. To put the Tibetan issue on the assembly agenda.
2. To propose a condemnation resolution.

Irish Foreign Minister Frank Aiken said a resolution was in the works, but that his delegation would not try to put it in until next week.

Diplomatic sources said Malaya already has agreed to join Ireland. Support also was expected from the Philippines, Mexico and Thailand.

End Hearing on Teen Crime in New York City

Asks Potential Slum Dwellers Be Discouraged

New York — A senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency has ended its 2-day hearing here on a note of controversy as to whether potential slum dwellers should be discouraged from coming to New York City.

Kings County Judge Samuel Leibowitz, appearing before the subcommittee yesterday, urged city officials to discourage migrants "from all parts of the country and the Caribbean" until the city has swept away its crime-breeding slums.

Leibowitz presented figures indicating that Puerto Ricans, with only 7 per cent of the city's population, were involved in 22.3 per cent of the city's juvenile delinquency cases in the first eight months of this year.

The figures also intimated that Negroes, estimated to comprise 11 per cent of the city's population, were reported to comprise 48.3 per cent of the citywide cases awaiting trial in the Brooklyn house of detention.

"We Need Them"

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) and Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-NY) argued against Leibowitz. Javits said: "I believe that ultimately we will integrate the most recent migrants. Certainly nothing should be done about the lawful movements of U. S. citizens."

"We need them for the hard chores and rough work," said Celler. "If they do not come, most of our hotels, restaurants and laundries would close."

A full-page newspaper advertisement sponsored by 182 Puerto Rican organizations said Puerto Ricans in New York have a lower delinquency rate than others in the same neighborhoods. The ad placed the number of Puerto Ricans in the city at 650,000 and said a quarter of them were born here.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Thomas D. Hennings, Jr., (D-Mo), plans to conduct hearings in other cities. The cities have not been named yet.

Claim Racial Tension In Milwaukee Growing To 'Explosive Stage'

Slaying of White Woman Creating Unrest; Mayor Vows Protection

Milwaukee — Mayor Frank Zeidler was informed Thursday night that racial tension in Milwaukee was reaching the explosive stage following the slaying of a white woman by a Negro. The mayor replied that the law would be enforced no matter what segment of the community breaks it.

Mrs. Pauline Coggs, a member of a committee named by the mayor to study problems involving Negroes in the city, told the mayor about tensions among her people at a meeting of the group. She long has been prominent in work for the National Association for Advancement of Colored People.

"I think this community, if tension stays the way it is now," Mrs. Coggs said, "will be lucky to escape a major riot by spring."

Shot to Death

Mrs. Coggs was referring to developments that have followed the killing Monday of Mrs. Sylvia Fink, a 39-year-old white housewife by Roscoe "The Preacher" Simpson, a 30-year-old Negro, described by police as a religious fanatic and a former mental patient. Simpson was shot to death in a gun duel with police the following night one block from the Fink home.

Mayor Zeidler assured Mrs. Coggs that Milwaukee police would "protect people in their homes wherever they happen to live."

"No group deserves mass condemnation by any other group of citizens as a result of the Fink murder," he added.

The mayor and Police Chief Howard O. Johnson told Mrs. Coggs that the police department "is strong enough to see that racial incidents do not develop, and, in case of any overt acts involving whites and Negroes, to take swift action to repress them."

Earlier Thursday, the police department, at the request of newspapers, reported that their files showed that Negroes although comprising only about 4 per cent of Milwaukee's 764,000 population, committed 43 per cent of the city's major crimes during the first six months of this year. The tabulation of major crimes showed that 682 were committed by Negroes, 916 by whites.

Press Irresponsible

Mrs. Coggs contended that news media were "completely irresponsible" in their reports of the slaying because they did not bring out prominently that Simpson was mentally ill. Earlier Thursday the mayor and other officials called for local, state and federal legislation that would prohibit indiscriminate sale of firearms. It was brought out that the gun Simpson used in the shooting of the woman and in his duel with police was purchased by him at a Milwaukee store.

Zeidler asked City Atty. Walter J. Mattison to draft a local ordinance tightening regulations on buying guns. He said that at present anyone could purchase a gun without a permit.

Rabbi Louis J. Swichkow said Thursday the murder of Mrs. Fink was "a sacrifice on the altar of society."

"Society ought to ask itself," Rabbi Swichkow said in the funeral sermon, "whether administrative heads are being provided with sufficient personnel to cope with mentally and emotionally unbalanced persons who are capable of committing cold blooded murder."

Rabbi Swichkow said Mrs. Fink's murder "was no act of God. This was an act of man. All of us must bear the responsibility in part."

Prepare for Mass Burial

Huge 35-Foot Grave Will Receive 11 Members of Family

Skandia, Mich. — A grave 36 feet long and eight feet wide was prepared in the Emanuel Lutheran church cemetery today for the burial of Mrs. Dora Larson and 10 of her children.

Close by, a single grave was dug for the children's uncle, Harry Larson.

Hundreds of mourners poured into this Upper Michigan village for the funeral services this afternoon. Most of them were people who did not know the Larson family until their hearts were stirred by the tragedy. Many were strangers who contributed to the expense of buying 12 caskets and clothing the dead for burial.

The 41-year-old mother, the children ranging from five months to 15 years, and the 64-year-old uncle drowned Tuesday after their 12-foot boat overturned in Lake Michigan near Hiawatha National Forest. They were on an outing to pick wild cranberries.

Thirteen in Boat

Thirteen packed into the boat. The only survivor and witness of the accident was the father, Leonard Larson, 42, a logging truck driver.

At a funeral home in Marquette Thursday night, Larson bowed his head as hundreds of mourners filed by to view the 12 bodies.

Rocky Missile Silo Really Aimed at Sky

Huge Hole at Launching Site To Protect Titan From Attack

Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. — You'd think they were digging a hole to hell—but it's really aimed at the heavens.

There will be times when the hole is a veritable inferno. Smoke and flames and ear-splitting thunder will roll forth, then struggling up through them will rise the deadly snout of a 20th century dragon, on its way to space.

City Destruction

Its mission may be the destruction of an entire city. Or it may seek only to scour the skies in quest of new knowledge for man, its master.

The dragon really exists. It is called Titan, because of its size. And hardrock miners, toiling around the clock at this west coast missile base, are digging a lair for the ocean-spanning missile.

Forty feet across and 160 feet deep, the hole will be ready for occupancy by the end of January.

The hole, called a silo because it is used for storage of the 90-foot missile, is the key part of an $8 million project. Three smaller holes have been dug nearby, for storage of the fuel, liquid oxygen and control instruments.

When finished, this will be the country's first underground Titan launching site. The missile, which has a record of four successes in five firings from surface pads at Cape Canaveral, Fla., is expected to be operational here in mid-1960.

Last April miners started digging four more silos. A year from now these will be completed, and Vandenberg will have two "hard" sites for launching Titans.

Attack Protection

Titan sites are hardened, or buried underground, to protect them from attack. Theoretically, at least, these missiles can be launched at an enemy even though nuclear bombs are dropping all around.

Making the sites bomb proof meant a lot of extra work by miners used to burrowing through all kinds of soil from granite to quicksand.

Working 24 hours a day in three shifts of at least 21 men each, these human moles dug the first complex of four holes and connecting tunnels with hand tools. Increased use of machinery on the second complex cut the number of men per shift to 14, but work still goes on around the clock.

believe it."

Larson sat in the funeral home with his only surviving child, Doris May, 16. She was in high school at Marquette at the time of the tragedy.

Among the mourners bringing gifts was a man who gave $150 for burial clothing. The Skandia Lions club has been receiving contributions to be turned over to the family. The women of the Skandia Methodist and Lutheran churches collected $250 in a quick canvass of the village.

Resourceful Navy Ridding Itself of Pesky Sea Gulls

Bayonne, N.J. — The resourceful navy is ridding itself of sea gulls by telling them to "get out of here" in their own language.

That is the translation offered by a navy spokesman after he heard a shrieking tape-recorded sea gull call, designed to drive the birds away from the supply depot here.

The translation may be more navy than sea gull—but it apparently works.

Bird Chasers

Two amateur bird chasers by the names of H. Palmer Starnier and Starnier Stocking showed up Thursday with their tape recorder.

They hooked it up to a public address system and an ear-shattering "aawk" resounded around the base.

While all this was going on an admiral stood atop an 8-story building, and reported "all he saw was birds everywhere."

The place was without gulls for two whole hours. Then, perhaps a little bewildered, they flew back. The navy expected them.

Apparently, the noise has to be repeated every few hours to keep the gulls away.

Stevens Point Okays Claim

Stevens Point — The Stevens Point city council has approved a $35,000 settlement of a damage claim filed by the father of a high school boy burned when he fell into a pile of ashes.

A $150,000 damage suit was brought by Myron Hansen for injuries suffered by his 15-year-old son, Charles. The youth fell into a pile of smoldering ashes outside the P. R. Jacobs High school in 1955. The ashes had been dumped there by a janitor.

Four Basic Types Of Modern Homes

Styles Varied Between Ranch, Bungalow, Cape Cod, Colonial Early American and Georgian

The 300,000 families who took to the road right after Labor Day in pursuit of homes they'll buy before all the autumn leaves have fallen will help put 1959 into the record books as one of the best housing years on record.

Although the styles of homes built this autumn may differ between mountain ranges and among price ranges, one of the country's leading roofing authorities contends there are only four basic types.

Each basic type, says Clarence Hausmann, materials expert, can be varied to a particular style — ranch, bungalow, Cape Cod, Tudor colonial, early American and Georgian roof sits on top of the upstairs rooms.

Split-level: Here habitable rooms are on three or more levels, each level being about a half flight up or down from its adjacent level. The grade level, with its concrete floor, usually is occupied by the garage, a play or family room and other areas for informal living. The living and dining rooms and the kitchen are on the next highest level. The next level up provides bedroom space, and occasionally, still another level above offers additional bedroom space.

House Needs Final Check on Performance

Avoid Agonizing Need for Repair Of Basic Items

New houses can be blue houses if the family blithely moves in without checking a few essential parts.

While the man who pays the builder is tending financial and legal formalities, the homemaker can be taking steps to minimize some of the grief that seems inevitable in occupying a new home.

Obviously it's impossible to check every nail, every shingle and each brick but fundamentals should be examined and tested before signing final papers and attempting to set up the menage.

First, look behind the plumbing fixtures. Imperfect connections lead to leaks, and leaks lead to damage.

Of course, tile floors in bathrooms and kitchens will survive almost any catastrophe, but storage cabinets and linen lockers under sinks will not be improved by leaks.

Second item would seem obvious, but it accounts for one of the most common and annoying of all new home disappointments. Try all windows to be sure they open and close without resorting to a crowbar. Builders are builders, not repair men, and it may mean some stuffy rooms until balky windows are greased.

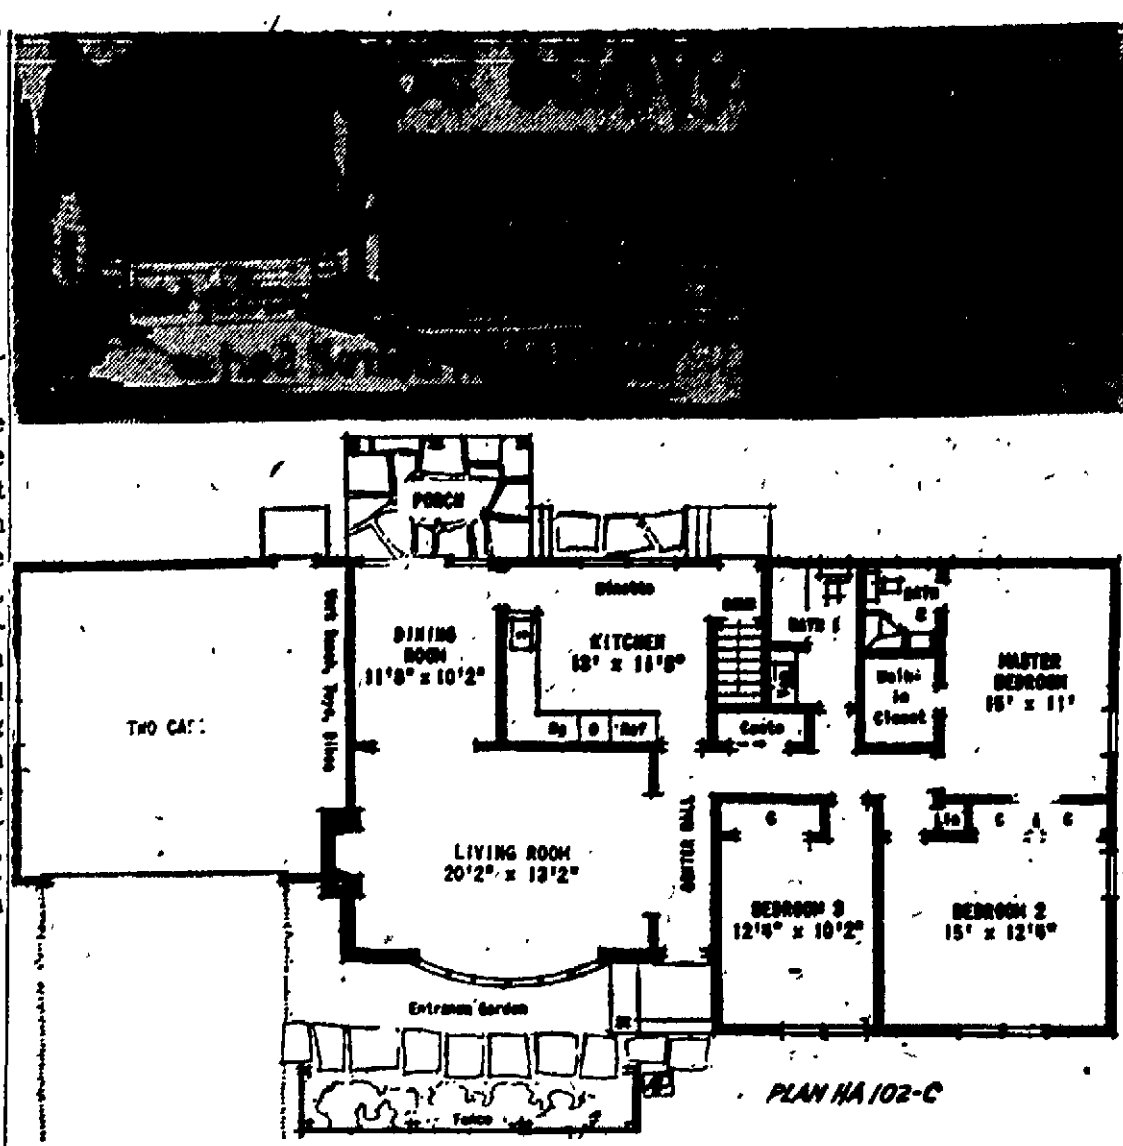

Don't forget the outside and grounds. If landscaping was part of your agreement with the builder, root out the planting scheme and specification. Against these original documents, check the health, number, type and arrangement of plants actually delivered.

Never Heard of You

Tucson, Ariz. — Raymond T. Harmon, 19, thought he saw an old friend sitting in a parked car.

Harmon put his head into the car window and asked the man, "Don't I know you?"

Apparently he didn't. The man hit Harmon over the head with a metal pipe and drove away.

Everything Is Here for Livability—a well-planned, step-saving layout, large bedrooms, ample closet space, full dining room and two baths. The ranch covers 1,470 square feet not including the garage. It is plan HA102-C by Architect Lester Cohen, 117 W. 48th street, New York 36, N. Y.

Farmer Grows All the Lumber for His House

Do-It-Yourselfer Harvested Trees, Sawed Them Into Useable Material

A tree farmer, John Madison, Western Pine association at Bend, Ore., inspected the land frame house for his family and certified it as a Western Pine tree farm. The association sponsors the tree farm program to recognize outstanding forestry practices on privately owned, taxpaying timberlands in pine areas of the Western states. Maximum use is made of each tree that is harvested by Madison.

Wood shavings from the planer go into the cow barn for use as bedding material. Other leftovers are used for firewood.

Madison, his wife, Veronica, and their 12-year-old daughter, Sheila, together with the wife's father, say the current project has brought the family closer together than ever.

The house, surrounded by towering firs and pines, blends into the timber-terred landscape from which it came. Through the modern picture window of the living room is a view of the snow-capped peak of Mt. Adams rising above Washington's Cascade Mountains.

Cedar Bolts

Besides the lumber, shingles for the new house also are homegrown. Madison's father-in-law, Charles Williams, who lives with the family, is hand-splitting cedar bolts to create attractive rough-hewn roofing. Even the furniture going into the house is fresh off the farm via Madison's carpentry workbench.

Madison, an army veteran of 26 months in the Pacific, was doing all right as an auto mechanic after World War II ended. But constant exposure to exhaust fumes began to give him trouble. In 1947, he and his wife used all their savings to buy a timber tract in the shadow of Mt. Adams which, although it had been logged before they acquired it, was amply stocked with timber.

About half the trees are ponderosa pine, the rest fir and larch. Madison found he could harvest 50,000 board feet annually without exceeding the volume of timber grown each year, thus enabling his woodland management to achieve a sustained yield status.

In 1949, a forester for the

Key Questions Must be Asked In Buying Home

Save Heartaches and Money by Finding Out Vital Facts

Home buyers faced with the decision of selecting the right home will save themselves some heartaches and pocketaches if they ask themselves—and the builder—the right questions.

Designers offer 10 points for families to keep in mind when shopping for a home:

How much room do you need for your family?

Does the design of the house lend itself to ready expansion?

Is the exterior of the house built of materials of established reputation?

If a garage is not included with the house does the size

$10,000 to $20,000 House Goal of Average Purchaser

Many of the 1,300,000 home buyers of 1959 will take to the highways and byways seeking to realize the dream of most American families: To build or buy their castles.

Who is he, this individual willing to assume the responsibilities of mortgage, taxes and assessments for 25 to 30 years in order to exercise the proclaimed privilege of every American?

This is the composite of the typical prospective 1959 home buyer.

He's in his early 30's, he served in the armed forces during World War II, went to college or learned a trade after the war, married at 25, has two or three children and expects more.

Income-wise he is in the bracket of 38 per cent of U.S. breadwinners whose disposable income this year will be over $3,000 and under $8,000. He'll pay $12,000-$20,000 for his home, and will need three to four bedrooms.

of the lot allow for later addition?

Good Insulation

Is the house protected with rock wool insulation so that it will be comfortable in hot and cold weather?

Is the kitchen of good size and properly ventilated?

Are electrical outlets where you need them? Is there enough current in the house to handle the many appliances used in today's homes?

If recreation room is included are its walls built of sturdy fireproof gypsum board?

Can favorable financial terms be arranged?

Finally, are you familiar with the builder's reputation for quality materials and workmanship?

Cool fall winds in many sections of the country will encourage homeowners to light the first indoor fire of the season soon.

But a word of caution: Make sure fireplaces are in good working order before putting a match to the paper and kindling wood.

That's the advice of John W. Bruce, a home specialist. Bruce, who recommends that a day or two each month be spent on home inspection and minor repairs, places fireplace inspection high on the fall check-list for home handymen.

"The romantic vision of a homeowner seated comfortably in his favorite easy chair watching the flames dance in the fireplace may be blurred somewhat by the problem of a fire that won't start; one that keeps going out or burns unevenly or one that blows soot into the room," the specialist points out.

Bruce advises lowering a weighted burlap bag down the chimney to dislodge soot from the flue; removing soot from base of chimney; checking the damper to see if it is working properly; cleaning wind shelf and ashpit. He also advises a careful check for loose bricks especially firebricks. These should be cemented back into place with a masonry cement.

To insure a good fire, Bruce suggests buying firewood early and letting the wood "season" for a few days before using it.

Things to Check

Other things to check in fall, according to Bruce, are roof and dormer ridges for loose shingles and flashing, metal railings for rust and siding for possible repainting. September is also a good time to replace filters in warm-air furnaces and re-pack radiator valves.

With the fall entertaining season ahead, a good September home improvement project would be to finish a basement or attic into a modern recreation room. Much of the work can be done by the homeowner, according to Bruce. Materials like wall-board, fibreboard planks and ceiling tiles, for instance, are available pre-painted and ready for installation with hammer or stapler.

Hearings Set on Inspection Fees

Madison — (P) — The Wisconsin Industrial Commission has scheduled public hearings in five cities on proposed inspection fee increases that would raise about $165,000 a year in additional income.

The boosts would apply to fees for inspection of boilers, unfired pressure vessels, refrigeration plants, elevators, escalators and powered dumbwaiters.

The hearings will be held at Eau Claire, Oct. 21; Wausau, Oct. 22; Green Bay, Oct. 23; Milwaukee, Oct. 23, and Madison, Oct. 27.

Your Money's Worth Big Upbeat Begins In Auto Industry

BY SYLVIA PORTER

A "bolero beat" now is beginning in the automobile industry.

You know the beat of this exciting form of music. Perhaps you can hear how it starts moderately, then swells, goes faster and faster. This quickening tempo is what appears today in the auto industry. The suggestion of a crescendo in 1960 is what reminds me of the music.

Porter

"We could be moving into a 7,000,000 car year."

"As big as 1955?"

"All the forces are there to make it as big."

"Even bigger?"

"It could happen. The situation is ripe for a record year."

Expert Prediction

Were I quoting the remarks of a Detroit automaker, you might understandably view the forecast with reservations. But instead, I'm reporting the comments of a high Washington authority.

What's more, his appraisal is becoming a general prediction among objective experts.

Actually, the difficult thing is to find reasons why the auto market will not be spectacular. A sudden business slump, slashing payrolls and paychecks, would destroy this forecast, but this isn't the horizon. Credit made so excessively tight and expensive that buyers simply couldn't finance their cars would change ly either.

Rather, the newness of the 1960 models is adding an exhilaration to the auto market not felt since the early post-war days, when even the sight of a new car made Americans pant to spend their cash. Not in a generation has there been such a variety of styles, sizes, price ranges in cars.

Second-Car Sales

The potentialities of the second-car market are breathtaking. The appearance of the compact cars is spurring interest in the purchase of a second car. In the suburbs there is a growing tendency for two cars — one for the whole family, one for the commuter. The breakdown of public transportation and the rise in the number of working wives sometimes are making a second car a necessity.

The fact that the car market has been depressed since 1955 is a plus factor, for this means there is a pentup demand for new cars. Thousands of families are ready to trade in their 1955's; many would have done so in 1959 had there not been such fanfare over the 1960's.

Of course, to Detroit and to all the industries tied to Detroit, a year of spectacular car buying will be of crucial meaning.

Other Forces Drop

To our entire economy, it will be of profound importance too. Several major forces which have been spurring us to new economic heights are losing power. The balance in the budget, for instance, means that no longer will government be pouring billions into the business stream. The upturn in the housing industry has leveled off, and housing also won't be helping much.

But other forces are moving in to replace these, and one of the most vital is rising spending on cars.

(Copyright, 1959)

Truck Damaged

Floyd Acheson, route 2, Appleton, contractor for the Riverdale plat, told police Wednesday afternoon that vandals broke the windows, headlights and taillights, put sand in the battery and gas tank and let air out of the tires of a dump truck in the Riverdale area.

Creamery Association Delegates Ask Defeat Of Marketing Program

Stevens Point — (P) — Delegates attending the Wisconsin Creameries association 17th annual convention Wednesday passed a resolution asking defeat of the proposed Wisconsin Agricultural Marketing act.

The plan, which was rejected during the regular session of the legislature, calls for dairymen to contribute part of their milk checks to finance the program.

Delegates said they were in favor of a self-plan for all of agriculture.

Other resolutions passed by the dairymen backed the present support program, opposed color in oleomargarine, favored reciprocal dairy inspections between states and favored a national milk sanitation bill.

There's the Answer

Question: We expect to have a house built to specifications. Because of a sad experience with termites some years ago, we want to be sure we do not have such trouble again. The advice we have received is that termites can be prevented from attacking the house if shields made of sheet copper are installed. Is this information correct?

Answer: Yes, termite shields made of sheet copper are an effective barrier against termites. The idea, of course, is to block the entry of the termites into the wood-work of the house. Since there are different types of termites that have different characteristics, it is well to discuss with your builder the kind of shield best suited for your purpose. Good builders keep up with the latest developments in the termite-protection field.

Questions: I have purchased an old dark upright piano which is in excellent condition. However, I would like to refinish it to match the rest of my furniture, which is Early American. I want to get a maple color on the piano. Can you tell me how to go about it?

Answer: You have assigned yourself an ambitious project, especially if you have not done any wood refinishing in the past. It will be necessary to remove the old finish with a chemical remover and then stain it to the desired shade. After that, a sealer must be applied over the stain, followed by at least two coats of clear varnish. Be certain the stain is thoroughly dry before putting on the sealer—and the sealer thoroughly dry before applying the varnish. Generally, it is better to learn something about wood refinishing on a smaller object than an upright piano. Better not start it unless you are certain you will go through with it, because the piano will look a lot worse partly refinished than it does now.

QUESTION: Most of the time the handle of the cold water faucet in our kitchen works all right. But every once in a while, the handle goes around and around without turning on the water. After doing this several times, the handle then catches and it's okay again for a while. Can this be fixed?

ANSWER: It is likely that only a new handle will correct the trouble. But to be sure it is the handle that is causing the difficulty, take it off and switch it with the handle from the hot water faucet. If the troublesome handle still does not work on the other faucet stem, then it means that the threads inside it have been stripped and a new handle is in order. However, if the old handle works all right on the hot water faucet, then it is probable that the threads on the upper part of the cold water faucet stem have been damaged. In that case, a new faucet stem is needed.

FHA Interest Boost Follows Signing of Bill

President Okays 3rd-Try Measure For Easy Loans

Washington — A boost in the top interest rate on FHA loans has followed President Eisenhower's signing of a third-try housing bill.

The Federal Housing Administration announced the increase from 5 1/2 to 5 3/4 percent in the permissible interest rate on home mortgages it insures. It means higher monthly payments for home purchasers, but is expected to make it easier for them to obtain the loans.

Eisenhower signed Wednesday the billion-dollar housing measure, aimed at keeping housing construction booming. It provides money to continue many government-backed housing programs. The president, who had vetoed two earlier bills as too costly, signed the third without comment.

Among other things, it permits smaller down payments and larger mortgages handled by the FHA. The maximum FHA-insured mortgage was increased from $20,000 to $22,500. The minimum down payment on an $18,000 house, for instance, was cut from $1,380 to $855.

Major Provisions

The new law gives the FHA authority to insure another $8 billion worth of mortgages, supplementing authority which was exhausted last June.

Major money provisions of the bill include $650 million over a 2-year period for slum clearance and redevelopment grants to cities, 250 million for college dormitory loans and 25 million to the Federal National Mortgage Association for buying mortgages on cooperative housing. An additional $50 million was authorized for loans for homes for the elderly, but an appropriation will be needed to make this effective.

Included over Eisenhower's protest was authority for 37,000 more units of low cost housing. The bill also extends the FHA home improvement loan program for one year to Oct. 1, 1960, and the military housing program two years to Oct. 1, 1961.

Women Voters Plan 'Good Government Day in Appleton'

The League of Women Voters will visit city hall and a council meeting Oct. 7 as part of "Good Government Day in Appleton," as proclaimed by Mayor Mitchell.

Mrs. Don L. Jury, co-chairman of the league's voters service committee, informed the city council the league will serve refreshments at the Conway hotel after the Oct. 7 council meeting.

Don't Sell Liberal Arts Short

BY DR. BENJAMIN FINE AND LILLIAN FINE

In guiding your child, it is essential that you understand the objectives of a good education.

It is far more than science and other "practical" skills alone. It is more than the humanities alone. It is a blending of the two, with something extra added: an understanding of the moral and spiritual values of mankind.

According to one definition, the educated person should "know something about everything and everything about something."

In other words, he should gain a broad background of knowledge and understanding that will enable him to see relationships and make some sense out of our crowded, chaotic world. Then he should specialize in one field or subject and become an expert in finding ways to improve and extend human competence in that field.

To develop understanding and appreciation and to gain a broad range of knowledge, one studies the liberal arts curriculum and late specialization will admit this understanding that will enable him to see relationships and make some sense out of our crowded, chaotic world. Then he should specialize in one field or subject and become an expert in finding ways to improve and extend human competence in that field.

What good is all that Latin and Greek? Where is it going to get you to study history? Will philosophy help you earn a living?

Too Much Science?

Year after year such criticism of traditional subjects has increased. And the educators, especially those in administrative positions, have often been quite willing to heed the criticism—after all, it's the public's money that pays an educator's salary.

Greek long ago disappeared from the course of study in almost all American high schools; Latin remains in a few, but is seldom, if ever, required. History has been integrated with social studies courses. Many American youngsters never study any history but that of the United States—and few of them really learn that. Philosophy, the "highest of the arts," is merely an elective and open only to upperclassmen in many colleges.

Here is what has taken the place of the classic courses in the public school curriculum: driver education, home economics and shop courses, guidance, health and hygiene courses, typing, drama, "personal adjustment," family life, and so on. Each of these courses may meet a real need, but there is in this "smorgasbord" of courses such a lack of unity in content and aim that youngsters do not have much chance to develop any real understanding of their world or themselves.

And as for character training and ethics too often these elements seem to have been tossed out along with Greek and Latin and ancient history. There is so much stress on practical needs and skills that less immediate values are likely to be ignored entirely.

However, we must keep in mind one painful fact if we demand changes in the course of study: school time is limited. We have to make choices and compromises.

All Have Talents

Probably our boys and girls do need more and better instruction in science. But the best way to achieve this is not something to be decided by fiat overnight. Certainly our children need better textbooks and laboratory equipment. The situation is especially bad in mathematics.

But you yourself can help your children learn more about science and mathematics. You can encourage them to read books and magazine articles about new developments. Family discussion of the advantages and rewards of scientific careers may inspire closer attention to classwork. Learning chess, checkers, or bridge will sharpen their ability to solve problems.

Many young people are frightened by science or mathematics or simply do not like these subjects. In the case of a youngster who has a genuine distaste for these subjects there is not much to be done. Probably he has other talents and aptitudes. If a child has a normal amount of intelligence and is fairly happy and well adjusted he almost certainly has some special abilities.

The late Albert Einstein to enter a science race. An undue emphasis on scientific needs is unsound. In a democracy a great deal more than science is needed. Actually, the money that is earmarked for scholarships could be used far more advantageously if the funds went to improve our elementary and high school curriculums.

"I don't know," replied the father of the atomic age, "but I do know how the fourth World War will be fought. With sticks and stones."

That is a sobering thought. Evidently the gap between the physical and the social sciences has widened indeed, and there is now a greater need for liberal arts than ever before.

Prison Housing Problem Area

More Delinquency Causes Continuing Difficulties

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay—Additional dormitory housing for the state reformatory, while meeting a temporary emergency, is not an ideal solution to the problem, members of the state department of public welfare have observed.

These views were expressed while the board toured the reformatory following a board meeting Wednesday. Though satisfied with remodeling the second floor of the old trades building into two dormitories for 130 men each, some members were concerned the crowded condition would continue.

Board members indicated satisfaction with extensions of the reformatory's vocational education program, especially the new masonry shop and the foundry.

Readmissions

The meeting also included discussions on the rate of readmissions to the reformatory and incidence of juvenile delinquency in Wisconsin.

About 20 per cent of reformatory inmates return to the institution, Supt. Skaff said. He explained the percentage is based on figures on inmates released on parole and conditional release, but that figures are not available on men whose terms have expired.

There were 218 readmissions among the 926 men received at the reformatory last year. The 218 included 44 parole violators returned for new offenses.

Some readmitted men are returned for violations of parole regulations and not for new crimes.

When Dr. William Stovell, welfare board chairman, asked whether there is more juvenile delinquency now or "whether we are making more noise about it," Welfare Director Wilbur Schmidt answered both factors exist.

Schmidt explained authorities are finding more cases of truancy, increased law enforcement and more juvenile handling, especially in rural areas.

Catholic Veterans Elect Officers

Harold Willemsen, 2201 N. Owaissa street, has been re-elected commander of the Commodore John Barry post of the Catholic War Veterans. Willemsen appointed Clifford McHugh adjutant and announced the Rev. Raymond Zagorski, assistant pastor at St. Mary church, has accepted the assignment of post chaplain.

Other officers elected were Jerry Van Dyke, first vice-commander; Francis DeGroot, second vice-commander; Richard S. Vandenberg, third vice-commander; Kenneth Romanesko, treasurer; Robert Bachman, judge advocate; Elmer Kreutzberg, welfare officer; Roy Rickert, historian; and Willard Boursa, officer of the day.

Douglas C. Dempsey, J. D. Rickert, and Daniel DeGroot are trustees.

U. S. Business Eyes Foreign Challenge

Watch Drop in Gold Supply While Imports Show Increase

BY SAM DAWSON

New York—(AP)—Increasing competition from foreign industries—notably those in western Europe and Japan—continues today to fret American businessmen.

They see our gold supply dropping—with signs that the status of the dollar is being weakened in the world's eyes. They see our exports dropping and our imports rising.

They see American companies building plants abroad to sell not only in their host countries where quotas and tariffs may keep American goods out, but also in some cases to sell in the United States itself at lower prices than the American firms can make their goods here.

They see some of our traditional markets abroad shrinking as foreign traders take over. The cry is raised that American goods are pricing themselves out of the market, and that rising production costs here are to blame.

Growing Challenge

They see foreign made goods increasingly challenging American products right here at home.

For some American industries, the situation already seems critical. For others it is regarded as a growing threat. Any sharp weakening of the U.S. dollar's international standing would hurt not only our pride but our pocket-books.

Against these fears the official Washington view has been that there is no basic weakness in the U.S. dollar, that the decline in U.S. exports and the big drain of gold, especially last year, reflect not American weakness but the growing health and strength of the leading industrial nations.

This is a policy deliberately followed by this country since the war in its system of grants and credits known as foreign aid, and in its drive for lower tariffs and other trade barriers.

The official view is endorsed today—up at least until the present—by Dr. Marcus Nadler, consulting economist to the Hanover bank, New York.

May Have to Change

But he goes on to warn: "If U. S. gold reserves should continue to shrink and the gold and dollar reserves of foreign countries go on rising, a modification of our foreign aid program would become imperative."

To this he adds: "Prices of certain types of U. S. manufactured goods—notably producers' goods and vehicles—have increased more rapidly than those of the principal competing countries. From 1953 to the third quarter of 1958, the wholesale price index of machinery and vehicles rose 7 per cent in Germany, 15 per cent in Great Britain, and 22 per cent in this country."

Dr. Nadler denies that up to now at least there is conclusive evidence that the U. S. has priced itself out of world markets. But he adds: "The fact remains that many products are cheaper abroad than here. It is apparent that from now on it will be more and more imperative that wage increases be based on productivity and not on the bargaining strength of the union."

"Similarly, price policies of American producers will have to be guided not merely by the domestic supply and demand factors, but also by foreign competition."

Our adverse balance of payments in 1958 that caused the outflow of gold he terms "the result of the huge U. S. government expenditures, grants and capital exports ($81 billion) and of private American investments abroad" (nearly $3 billion).

He stoutly contends that up till now "there is no basic weakness in the international position of the U. S. dollar."

Legion Presents Circus Profit to Retarded School

Three checks from Fox Cities organizations have helped boost the School for Retarded Children fund over $4,000. A check for the proceeds from a circus sponsored by American Legion Post No. 38 was given to the Outagamie Citizens for Retarded Children, Inc., by Richard Bowden, post commander.

Checks from the International Brotherhood of Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' welfare fund in Kaukauna, the Jolly 11 lodge, Kaukauna, and the VFW auxiliary also have been received.

Another $10,000 has been pledged for the school, which will be called the Robert Plammann school.

Tentative plans have been made for a major fund-raising activity in December. The legion auxiliary also contributed proceeds from a card party held Tuesday.

Police Detective's Slayer Faces Hanging

London—(AP)—German-born Guenter Podola was found guilty Thursday of murdering a police detective. The penalty under British law is death by hanging.

The verdict was returned by a jury of ten men and two women after a 2-day trial in Old Bailey court. The jury was out only 35 minutes.

Podola was accused of shooting Detective Sgt. Raymond Purdy, 43, July 13. Purdy and another detective were attempting at the time to arrest the 30-year-old photographer on a charge of making threatening phone calls demanding money from Mrs. Verne Schiffman, a TV actress and model.

"I cannot put forward any defense," Podola told the jury. "I cannot remember the circumstances leading up to the events or to this shooting. I do not know if I did, or whether it was an accident, or an act of self-defense."

Why I Came Back To Christianity

● "Is there a satisfying religion for the modern educated man?" Lin Yutang, Chinese philosopher who once wrote, "Why I am a Pagan," recently startled millions of followers by returning to Christianity. Read in October Reader's Digest why he has "come home again"—back to the only religion which establishes a personal relationship with God.

New Gospel Chapel to Be Dedicated Sunday

$35,000 Structure First Church Built In City Since Bethany Lutheran in 1950

Kaukauna — Dedication of the recently completed Community Gospel chapel, 1717 Main avenue, will be held at 3:30 p. m. Sunday.

The structure, valued at $35,000 although it cost only about $25,000 since much parish labor went into the building, is the first church built in Kaukauna since 1950 when Bethany Lutheran church was completed.

The parish consists of 45 members. Serving on the building committee were Earl G. Asman, Kenneth C. Nichols, G. Mitchell Boyes and James E. Watson.

City Nurse to Resign Unless Aid Is Given

Health Board Told Stenographic Duties Slowing Up Program

Kaukauna — Mrs. Gertrude Nagel, city nurse, has informed the board of health she would be forced to resign if clerical help was not furnished her office within 30 days.

In a letter to the board she pointed out the board had approved full time stenographic help for her on three occasions but each time the matter was brought before the council, the request was referred to the finance committee with no action resulting.

Records indicate the last study for the need for help was to have started in January of this year. Mrs. Nagel handles nursing duties at public and parochial schools in the city together with her other duties as city nurse.

Required Records

Mrs. Nagel informed the health board she was unable to carry out many duties in the interest of public health, to her satisfaction, as she was required to spend a good deal of her time making out and filing reports as required by the state.

The nurse was not objecting to her work, the salary or the hours required but felt clerical help was a necessity if she hoped to maintain a health program to the best interests of the city and its citizens.

The letter together with recommendations by the board of health will be studied at the first council meeting in October.

Kimberly Girls Learn Proper Canning Method

Kimberly — Home economics students at Kimberly High school have been learning the art of home canning in classes taught by Mrs. Vivian Boehm.

Girls, working together as teams, put up peaches, pears, pickles, apple butter and tomato juice. Each of the finished jars were labeled with student's names and they will be watched to ascertain whether the work was carried out successfully.

The process was new to most of the girls as the majority of food preservation today is done through home freezers, according to the instructor.

Kaukauna Attorney Tells Thilco Girls of Estate Values

Kaukauna — Pointing out "you may have a larger estate than you think," Neil J. McCarty, Kaukauna attorney, TEA members fund, $500 in a bank account, $500 in the Thilco credit union, an automobile worth about $1,000, another $1,000 of regular life insurance and possibly $500 in shares of stock.

"Thilmany Ann could control about $7,500," according to the speaker. He explained the interest accumulated in the TEA plan, the importance of future social security payments to her and her dependents and the Thilmany retirement plan.

Comparing "Thilmany Ann's" estate with that of a self-employed person, he said the self employed could have no group life insurance, no TEA member fund, no tax benefits of a profit-sharing plan, no credit union for saving or borrowing and no tax-sheltered retirement plan.

He advised the girls, "even though your estates may be small, you have important estate planning decisions to make."

$200 Damage Set In 2-Car Mishap

Kaukauna — Over $200 damage resulted but no one was injured in a 2-car accident in the 100 block of Wisconsin avenue about 10:15 a.m. Wednesday.

According to police, a car driven by Norman Pilger, 44, Wayside, was pulling away from the curb when his car collided with one driven by Leon Delie, 66, 1614 Shawano avenue, Green Bay, who was going west on Wisconsin avenue.

Recreation Art Class Postponed for Week

Kaukauna — The recreation department sponsored art classes, originally scheduled to start Saturday, have been postponed for one week, according to Mrs. Roger Bell, instructor.

Registrations have been extended through Thursday. Parents wishing to enroll youngsters can call Mrs. Bell.

Kimberly CWV Auxiliary Plan Officer Installation

Kimberly — Preliminary plans for a potluck dinner to be held in conjunction with a joint officer installation ceremony by the Catholic War Veterans and its auxiliary were made at a recent meeting of the women's unit.

Committees were appointed to handle various phases of the affair. Mrs. Lloyd Hengel will be general chairman assisted by Mrs. William Van den Oever, Mrs. Ann Kramer, Mrs. Anton Van den Boom and Mrs. Leo Santkyl.

Named to the decorating committee were Mrs. Lawrence Artz and Mrs. Cletus Dietzler while Mrs. Joseph Gossens will be hospitality chairman.

Lunch and entertainment chairman for meetings from October through June were appointed. Serving in this capacity will be Mrs. Kramer, Mrs. Martin Hanegraf, Mrs. Gossens, Mrs. Artz, Mrs. Francis Vanden Berg, Mrs. Joseph Kortenhoef, Mrs. Melvin Biese and Mrs. Gerald Vander Loop.

Mrs. Kramer and Mrs. Hanegraf, co-chairmen of the sewing committee, reported 100 hospital gowns had been made by the committee and these will be sent to the veterans' hospital at King and to a missionary house in Illinois.

Wisconsin's Tax Revision Program

Gov. Nelson has ordered 5,000 additional copies of the report of his tax impact committee. The first edition of this report has been exhausted in supplying the demand from civic groups, libraries, firms and individuals.

The governor says he is greatly encouraged by the "sober, responsible approach" that has been taken to this important matter by so many of our citizens. The study probably will never become a best seller but it should be made available to everyone in Wisconsin who is interested in the hope that more people will be better informed.

As the Wisconsin tax program stands today, there are no definite proposals up for consideration. A committee of experts in this field has prepared the study. It contains a great variety of facts and it also offers several possible solutions to the state's problems. No one of the solutions has been recommended over the others. The committee has stated each solution and the expected result if it should be adopted.

Now a committee of citizens is studying the report and it is the duty of this group to make recommendations. This committee is composed of what might be called practical people as opposed to the experts on the first committee. A great many fields of endeavor are represented. In fact, those making the recommendations will be representatives of the people who must pay the tax. It often has been said that everyone pays taxes and, of course, this is true. Many taxes are a part of the price we pay for goods or services and may not be recognized taxes. But it must be quite plain that no matter how the committee shifts the burden, there will be no escaping some part of it for everyone.

Another important consideration will be the promotion of industry in Wisconsin to make jobs for Wisconsin's citizens. Frequently, people are better off financially if they accept a certain tax burden with a view to insuring themselves regular employment.

While the committee still is considering possible recommendations, people with axes to grind are busy making propaganda for their own points of view. A group representing business, which calls itself the Wisconsin Committee for Tax Revision, has set forth its proposals. It favors a general 3 per cent sales tax on consumer purchases of tangible goods and payments for lodging by transients and tourists. It would exempt from the sales tax such items as beer, cigars, gasoline and liquor which already are subject to state selective sales taxes. The committee proposes to use about one half of the income from the sales tax to reduce real estate and personal property taxes. It would eliminate the surtax on the income tax and increase the personal income tax exemption from $7 to $22.50. It would reduce the corporate income tax by setting the top income tax bracket rate at 6 per cent on all income over $5,000. The top now is 7 per cent on all income over $5,000. The committee would use the remainder of the income from the sales tax to balance the state budget. It is estimated there would be about $28,000,000 available for that purpose.

This proposal has brought from some of the liberal Democrats the demand that the Democratic party reaffirm its opposition to a sales tax when it meets in convention next November.

Mayor Ivan Nestingen of Madison has offered a resolution of opposition to a sales tax which he hopes will be considered by the convention. Pat Lucey, state Democratic chairman, has indicated he will support the Nestingen stand.

Gov. Nelson has been trying to get the tax program before the public for free discussion. For about four years, the position of the Democratic leaders in the state has been that the sales tax is wrong and there is nothing about it to discuss. The Nestingen proposal appears to be an effort to again cut off discussion. Gov. Nelson has pointed out that the positions taken by Nestingen and Lucey are premature since there is no specific proposal up for discussion.

What Wisconsin needs above all now is free discussion of all aspects of the tax program. Gov. Nelson is attempting to put that into effect. The proposal of the businessmen's committee is a contribution to such a discussion. The people of Wisconsin are going to pay the tax and will have to live with it for some time once the program is adopted. They should have all of the information that can be provided to help them make up their minds.

The Packers Open a New Season

Sunday the Green Bay Packers begin their 41st season as a football team and their 89th year of play in the National league.

As has been the case for many years, the Green Bay team will open against the Chicago Bears. Although this is rated in Green Bay as one of the most severe tests, no one would wish to change it because the fans want to see their Packers and judge them in competition with the best. As always on the eve of the Bear game, Green Bay hopes are high but this year we think there is something new in the minds of the fans.

The Packers have won six National league championships. It is only natural that the fans in this vicinity, having tasted the joys of National league supremacy, should be anxious for more of the same. Although the last championship came in 1944, every season since has opened with speculation as to the possibilities of another title. Even last year when the team started what proved to be the most disastrous season in its history, there had been strong intimations that a championship was in sight. There was no sound basis for such a prediction but to the followers of professional football anything is possible. The fact that a tremendous amount of luck and some near miracles would be required to bring it about have never prevented the ardent fans from hoping.

This year there has been no talk of a championship. Emphasis has been on building. This has been a healthy thing for the team, for the coaches and the fans. With this attitude there has been room for selection of players who may be great in two or three years but can scarcely be expected to be outstanding this season. Likewise, it has made it possible to drop some older players who were experienced and might help to win a game or two but who probably would have little to offer in the years ahead. Such a policy is necessary if the team is to be a serious contender again. It is quite apparent that the fans have come around to accepting this policy.

There is talk that the Packers may win some football games — three or four, perhaps more — but no packer fan ever ceases to hope for a championship even though he may know it would take a miracle to bring it about.

A Matter of Semantics

One of the problems in our dealings with other countries is that the recipients of various types of our foreign aid might resent the need for help and eventually come to hate the giver. Thus the titles of the programs have been carefully thought out, even to being changed every few years, so as to make other countries feel the whole arrangement is on a partnership basis. There is the International Cooperation administration, and the Mutual Security funds. But the latter term has run into difficulties in Morocco.

Recently the United States made an arrangement with the Moroccan government whereby the dollar equivalent of the payrolls of local U. S. air base employees would be deposited in the Moroccan treasury. This had the double purpose of making the Moroccan government the paymaster and the employer of Moroccan civilian labor at the bases, and it also gave a buoyant boost of foreign currency to Morocco which has a chronic financial crisis.

But political opponents of the rulers in Morocco began charging that this seemed to mean acceptance of the bases, which were constructed before Morocco gained its independence from France. The government hastily announced that the fund agreement had nothing to do with agreement on the status of the bases. It particularly emphasized that "mutual security" was not involved.

Of course our air bases in other countries are for "mutual security" in that they protect us all from the onslaughts of the Soviet Union. But the reaction in Morocco, political though it is, should make us realize that nobody has been fooled very much by our careful terminology. Things are just too "mutual" for the Moroccans when it means we might ask them for something.

Rockin' Chair Revival

The old saw about "Where does it get you — in the end?" may have to be revised for those who intend to spend the tag ends of their lives just sitting. Workers at the Human Performance laboratory at the University of California at Los Angeles have come up with a new kind of a seat for chairs.

Medical men and psychologists have been warning of late that the tendency of Americans to give up all meaningful work at a prescribed age leads to inactivity, a feeling of not being needed, and such a physical and morale slowdown that death comes sooner.

But the HPL's new kind of seat no longer permits the sitter to put his weight on part of his legs, which tends to hinder circulation. Instead the weight must rest on the tuberosities or seat bones and there are eight soft springs which yield gently and actually keep the sitter moving.

All the fine points of what exactly leads to swollen feet, fatigue, drowsiness, fainting and thrombosis, which the HPL points to as dangers from sitting, escape us. But it would seem that the old-fashioned rocking chair, now almost extinct, could do everything the newfangled invention can. And it has a nice relaxing rhythm, too.

More Parking Space Needed Before a College Avenue Mall

Editor, Post-Crescent:

When, and if, a shopper's mall in Downtown Appleton becomes a reality, where will the city make up the difference for the lost parking spaces? Perhaps everyone will co-operate and purchase a small car. Or, worse still, the parking problem will be handled with apathy and indecision until the problem becomes even worse than it now is. The city has installed parking meters on heavily traveled streets; the city has wisely added parking lots and meters on these lots to help alleviate the ever increasing parking space problem; the police department has earnestly tried to enforce parking meter violations; the chamber of commerce has lifted the restrictions on the use of Jones park. So, everyone concerned has shown their awareness of the situation to an admiring degree.

But that strangling demon, lack of parking facilities, has caught his second wind and is winding up to scatter shoppers away from Downtown Appleton. The demon knows he is in a real battle because he has lured many of the friends of every citizen of Appleton to his side. The more comfortable, high-powered cars with their new long, sleek bodies are not only eating up existing parking spaces, but are also narrowing traffic lanes and snarling steady traffic movement.

Appleton's population growth with the natural increase of car-owners has made the cartoon with the driver circling the block several times very untimely. Another friend, easier credit, has made it possible for more and more people to own cars. Every new car is a boost to our economy, but the demon "lack of parking at the inability to park them easily."

The new College avenue bridge will surely funnel more cars into Downtown Appleton from our neighboring communities. The bridge is an excellent answer to the antiquated roadways connecting Appleton's south side and neighboring communities to the heart of Appleton. Every citizen should be proud of the bridge. But, has the demon thought of a way to further his aims with the bridge?

Shouldn't the slaying of the demon "lack of parking facilities" pre-empt a shopper's mall? Wouldn't the shopper's mall make the demon even more powerful? Isn't it time to squelch the demon now by building parking ramps, securing more lots and changing the parking from angle to parallel? Interested

Returns to New York Gold Mine

70 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Sept. 25, 1890.

Mr. Scidmore left the city on Friday evening to return to his gold mine in the northern part of the state of New York.

He has already sufficiently developed some of the mines to prove that they will pay enormously to the wonderment of those sleepy eastern people, who never dreamed that there were fabulous amounts of wealth right under their feet. But "Scid" has known it since boyhood days and he has kept up a mighty thinking about it ever since he came west.

Every time he revisited the scenes of his boyhood, he would go out hunting with his gun, but always carried a hammer. Rock hunting was his principal game, but no one was the wiser, as he kept his discoveries to himself until he had located and secured a number of claims and then the news spread like wildfire. But we feel sure he got the cream of the crop locations.

In this enterprise a number of Appleton gentlemen are associated with him, all of whom are sanguine of success.

Dr. H. E. Peabody and other members of First Congregational church were to attend the annual Congregational state conference at Lake Geneva.

Samuel Sigman, attorney for the Appleton Trades and Labor Council, spoke at a meeting of Menasha and Neenah Labor unions who were to be organized into a Neenah-Menasha Trades and Labor group.

Kennedy-Proxmire Trial Balloons Flying

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Political pot-pourri: There was a professional hand at work in the several trial balloons issued recently about the possibility of a Kennedy-Proxmire national Democratic ticket next year.

Although the suggestions came from little known persons out in the state, they were professionally prepared in the form of news releases, and they happened to be addressed correctly to precisely the news offices where they were intended to be used.

Most of the appropriations supplicants who turn up before Gov. Nelson carefully and respectfully address him by his formal title.

Not so Dr. L. O. Simenstad of Oscola, chairman of the state aviation commission. He familiarly addressed his old friend as "Gaylord". Dr. Simenstad and Dr. Antione Nelson, the governor's late father, practiced medicine for many years in Polk county.

TAKEN FOR GRANTED

Most of the news dispatches that covered the appropriation requests total prepared this week by the state department of administration appeared to assume that the requests would be honored, and thus aggravated the prospective deficit in the budget that will confront the legislature in November.

But there is very little chance that all of the appeals for more money will be approved. The governor has hinted broadly enough for the most ardent money seeker among the office-holders to grasp, indeed, that he intends to deny most of the requests for new services.

What must the private citizen think about the mechanics of Wisconsin legislation when more than eight weeks after the legislature has ended its session, the governor has not yet received many scores of enactments of that session? The legislative machinery cries out for an efficiency expert.

The state department of administration is evidently planning a serious effort to consolidate the state licensing and registration functions as they apply to the various professions and trades. Some of those special groups will protest, as they have protested similar proposals in the past. But hearings are quietly going on at which the licensed groups are asked to discuss the proposal for a central licensing bureau.

A little noticed act of the recent legislature may do something to reduce the logjam in some of the trial courts of the state, and especially in Milwaukee. Starting next January, it will require every judge, as a condition of receiving his salary, to execute an affidavit stating that no cause of matter in his court has been delayed more than a year, except for disability or illness.

SLAP AT WILEY

The current news-letter of the Menominee Indian tribe, concerned as it is with problems relating to the termination of federal controls, contains an impatient reference to Sen. Alexander Wiley. The tribal delegation was again unable to see him on its last visit to Washington, although it was cordially and helpfully received by other Wisconsin representatives, of both parties, the bulletin relates.

Gov. Nelson has many good friends among organized labor leaders and officers, but the man who comes close to being his best friend in the labor movement is John Schmitt of Milwaukee, just named by the governor to the Governor's Commission on Human Rights. He is secretary of the big and powerful Brewery Workers Local in Milwaukee and a member of the state AFL-CIO executive board.

Some of the publicity inspired by the Democratic state committee has a strange sound, reminding the party's claims to adherence to the spirit of the state open primary law. James Megellas of Fond du Lac and Norman Clapp of Lancaster are repeatedly publicized as virtual nominees for congressmen in their districts, although the primary election for the purpose of making nominations is a year distant.

New York Power Failure Proves Simplicity Virtue

From The Washington Evening Star

The recent power failure in upper Manhattan is a reminder of how important the simple things of life can be. The failure grievously upset and inconvenienced no fewer than 500,000 New Yorkers on a hot and humid day. With all lights out, they were caught in awful traffic jams on the streets, and they sweltered miserably in stalled subway trains. The elevators in their skyscrapers would not budge. Their food spoiled in refrigerators that could not refrigerate. The beer in their saloons became fearfully warm. They were trapped in the pitch-black darkness of windowless buildings, and they found the heat — triumphant in the presence of paralyzed air conditioners — overwhelming oppressive.

In the midst of this ordeal, the sufferers rediscovered the uncomplicated beauty and value of two little items that loomed large in earlier times. The lowly candle and the old-fashioned block of ice suddenly became desirable beyond words in upper Manhattan. New Yorkers, with their vastly complex electronic gadgetry temporarily broken down, thus had their eyes opened to the fact that a pushbutton civilization is not foolproof and that certain things of the past ought to be clung to even as progress marches on with noisy inexorability. There is a lesson in this for all of us. Simplicity, in terms of both principles and machines, still has its virtues in our supremely technological age.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has promised the parents of Regina and Thomas Leonas, left, that the two children will be allowed to leave Russia and join their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Leonas live in Chicago and appealed to Khrushchev when he visited Iowa. Miss Donna Armonas, 24, Wickliffe, Ohio, right, said Khrushchev told her her mother will be freed from Lithuania very soon to come to the United States.

nounced disarmament, one would doubt its sincerity. It would not appear to be mature.

This, for Khrushchev, is one test of American intentions. Another, he made plain, will be willingness of the United States to sell the U.S.S.R. anything or everything, regardless of any item's possible usefulness for building a war machine. He put it this way:

"We want to live in peace with you. We want to trade with you, because we believe trade is a litmus paper (chemical test) to indicate whether you want to live with us."

Remain Skeptical

Khrushchev, in contrast to his performances at some other of his stops across the country, remained serene and unruffled throughout the dinner, attended by two dozen of the country's top business executives. At least some of the guests, however, came away unfavorably impressed by the world communist boss' attitude.

"He's interested in peace at no price, on his terms," commented Maj. Gen. David Sarnoff, board chairman of Radio Corporation of America. He added he noted no fundamental change in Khrushchev's attitude since his arrival in this country.

"He wants to trade, but on his terms," said Charles H. Percy, president of Bell and Howell company. "As I see it, it's completely a one-way street."

Khrushchev canceled plans for a visit this morning to the National Institutes of Health at nearby Bethesda, Md. He could use that time to rest up after his taxing experiences. His fatigue had begun to show.

Herter's Guest

But Khrushchev also probably needed that time to catch up on his paper work. He would have a good deal of homework to do in private before departing for Camp David in the afternoon.

His only other scheduled activity was a luncheon as guest of Sec. of State Christian A. Herter.

There have been 11 days of spectacular touring, hi-jinks, arguing, cajoling, corn-in-specting, baby-kissing and other related activities. But this weekend is the payoff, the quiet, down-to-earth climax to a hitherto diverting show.

The world communist boss barreled back into the nation's capital from Pittsburgh still a study in human energy, ready to take on all comers at a reception he gave at the Soviet embassy.

With little time for rest after his whirlwind tour of Pittsburgh, he was garrulous and argumentative as ever.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, a guest at the reception, inquired about the premier's health.

"Fine," snorted Khrushchev. "Did you think I had succumbed?"

"No," replied Nixon. "You have too much energy for that."

The plane plunged into a pine forest two miles from Bordeaux - Merignac airport just before midnight after making a shaky takeoff.

The pilot appeared to be having difficulty gaining altitude on leaving the runway.

"We could hear the engines coughing," said a spectator at the airport. "The pilot seemed to be fighting for control. He made several attempts to get the plane's nose up but the plane just wobbled. It hooked the tops of trees and then plowed into the ground."

Severe Explosion

"There was a tremendous roar when the plane blew up. We could see two immense balls of fire."

Many relatives and friends of passengers watching the takeoff saw the crash and hysterically broke through guard rails in an effort to rush to the scene.

Fire engines and rescue trucks had to cut through about a mile of scrub and small trees to get to the wreckage.

Large Entourage

Kennedy travels with a sizeable entourage, three full-time assistants from Washington, and two paid Wisconsin aides. State party Chairman Patrick Lucey traveled with him yesterday and today.

Aides say that questions fall into a pattern, and lean heavily toward the new national labor reform act.

Kennedy's apparent desire is to convince Democratic liberals that the bill is not wholly satisfactory, that he wanted something less stringent, but that he and other Democrats drove the best bargain they could get for the unions and that without their work a more punitive act would have been written.

not grant "equal time" to all political candidates when one happened to be mentioned in the normal course of news broadcasts, but congress re-affirmed its right to dictate how these stations shall handle political speeches.

Whenever a station provides time for a regular speech to one candidate, it still must do the same for all others. The editor of the station's programs may decide the speech by a rival candidate isn't as interesting as other news and the time could be better used for the benefit of the audience.

Unfortunately, the United States Supreme court in 1943 ruled that congress can abridge the freedom of the press wherever a radio or television license issued by the government is involved. In other words, the grant of a government privilege takes away the right of the recipient to be on a par with other branches of the press.

Press Losing Rights
Someday the Supreme court may rule that, because of their acceptance of second-class mail privileges, congress is given the right to tell newspapers how they shall allocate their news space on speeches in political campaigns. To avoid this, the only safe course is to secure the adoption of a new amendment to the constitution which specifically says the acceptance of a license or grant from the federal government shall not require of the recipient the surrender of any rights of the press already guaranteed by the constitution.

It seems odd that there hasn't been a nationwide movement to protect freedom of the press from such encroachments. It is good that congress did say radio and television stations need not give time to every political candidate when one happens to be mentioned in or appears on a news broadcast. This relief will be helpful, but the very fact that congress backed off slightly on its original rule serves to emphasize what a far-reaching power has been exercised by congress as a result of the supreme court decision 16 years ago.

Radio and television are part of the free press of the nation. They merely present news through a different mechanical medium than through the printed word. The principle involved in all media is the same—dissemination of news.

The argument that by grant-

$100,000 Income
Martha has been earning well over $100,000 a year playing unsympathetic other women roles on the screen. In "Ice Palace," Warner Brothers' filming of the Edna Ferber novel, Martha has her first screen baby and first death scene.

"This should get me sympathy—for once," says Martha. Earlier this year she issued an edict that she wanted no more cold, unsympathetic parts. "Ice Palace" marks the emergence of the new Martha Hyer.

Her art and other investments have made her financially secure. Looks, wit, breeding and money make her one of the best catches in town but Martha has no husband plans at the moment.

"I'm having too much fun looking for a husband to worry about catching one," she declares. Unlike many other bachelor movie queens, Martha says she has never found any man shortage in Hollywood.

Professional Men
"I find the most interesting suitors among doctors, lawyers, real estate men and other professions," she maintains.

"As for the paintings, I get more than my money's worth out of them. Money lying in a vault is not beautiful, except to a miser. I have all my money hanging on my walls—in great works of art."

"When I come home at night, I look at my money and it gives me great joy. If I ever get broke, I can always sell a painting and keep the other kind of wolf away from the door."

ing a license to a company for television or radio broadcasting, the government has a right to control or regulate the news content of a medium is repugnant to the First amendment, which says congress "shall make no law abridging the freedom of the press."

Since the supreme court has ruled that the First amendment goes by the boards the moment a government privilege is given there would seem to be no way out of the difficulty except by a constitutional amendment.

Affords Favoritism
Even the present system of awarding licenses is contrary to the spirit of American institutions. Applicants for licenses must satisfy a Federal Communications commission as to their acceptability. The qualifications necessary are vaguely stated in the law. This affords an opportunity for considerable discretion, if not favoritism. When government contracts are let in other fields, the custom is to give it to the lowest financial bidder, provided the company has integrity and experience.

It would be far better if the award of licenses for broadcasting were made to the highest bidder. This would mean revenue to the government since nothing substantial is paid for such licenses now. As it is, the government maintains a tight hold on the applicant. This is inconsistent with the free enterprise system.

What we have today really is a form of statism wherein the government could, under some unscrupulous officials, insist that political favor be granted to an incumbent administration lest the licenses be revoked.

Nobody has ever objected to the right of the government to award the limited number of licenses for radio and television on the basis of "public interest, convenience and necessity" where the problem is one of allocation based on population or other statistical factors or where it is necessary to avoid mechanical collisions of wave lengths. But the theory that any medium of expression has a right to ignore government dictation has gone by the boards. Where radio and television are concerned, the gov-

Dr. Dooley to Appear At Lawrence Chapel

Cancer Victim Who Helps Laos Central Figure in Sunday Night ABC-TV Special

Dr. Thomas Dooley, central figure of an hour-long dramatic documentary on ABC-TV Sunday night, will be an Appleton visitor in mid-October.

Dooley, 32, victim of a fast-spreading, often quickly fatal cancer, is the energetic Irishman you've seen on the Dave Garroway and Jack Paar TV shows pleading for money to build hospitals in Laos, the tiny Red-throated Asiatic kingdom.

Robert Hubbell, dean of men at Lawrence college, who is spearheading arrangements for Dooley's Appleton appearance, said the young doctor probably will speak at the college chapel at 8 p. m. Oct. 16. Arrangements were being completed today.

The ABC-TV documentary is a retort to "The Ugly American," an earlier, fictionalized expose of American foreign service ineptitude.

Called "The Splendid American," it will be carried by WLWK-TV (Channel 11), the local ABC-TV outlet, at 9:30 p. m. Sunday.

The program tells of the accomplishments of Dooley, Ras Johnson and Clyde Searl in north Laos. ABC-TV Newsman John Daly will narrate. Dooley, who is in St. Louis getting ready for surgery, became interested in Laos when, as a navy medic, he became caught up in the 1954 evacuation of anti-communists from North Viet Nam.

He was so appalled at the state of the refugees he wrote the 1955 bestseller "Deliver Us From Evil," and poured his royalties and profit from a lecture tour into helping an international

Smoky-Tone Beads Blend With Neutral Shades

The Ways in Which this important 6-strand necklace can be worn are limited only by imagination and fashion know-how. The beads are available in muted shades of brown, grey, green, red, blue and pearl and contrast with neutral suit colors.

Fall jewelry is as colorful and elegant as the season itself and the woman who wants to look especially pretty has a fashionable array of smart beads from which to make her daily selections.

Daytime pieces are available in everything from brushed metals featuring the "shantung" look to translucent beads of shimmering autumn shades. Smoky brown, deep grey, olive green, red blue and pearl will provide necessary highlighting for neutral color suits and bright accents for the basic black dress found in every wardrobe.

Diffused looks — featuring many different shades of the same color—give soft contrast or sparkling highlights to basic wool costumes and mixing sizes, shapes and finishes will often result in striking and unusual combinations.

Tailored Look

Tailored jewelry occupies an essential niche in any smart gem wardrobe and simple pins of gold or silver, some highlighted with bright gems, are good suit companions.

Although color is the key to fall jewelry there are two distinct divisions — daytime pieces range from the glow of gold through soft diffused autumn shades and evening accessories are seen in the true gem tones which provide such smart accents for black ensembles.

New pronged settings are news in stone-set jewelry and some designs almost pile stones high to create a treasure-chest appearance.

Ropes—always popular and versatile—are appearing this fall in varieties of classic and contemporary designs. Solid metals of silver and gold can be entwined imaginatively with bright, sparkling gems to provide colorful accents to sheath and shirtwaist dresses.

Jet beads, mostly in dark tones, come in many different sizes and lengths and jewelry shoppers can choose from single-strand designs to as many as six strands joined in one piece.

Gay jewels will also be seen as glamorous evening accents and in unlikely places—such as chignon decorations, glittering tiaras and wide, jeweled collars.

And for those who can afford the real thing—there are always the lovely diamonds and authentic gems set into smart, tasteful settings in rings, bracelets and earrings.

Always in Classic Good taste is this combination of pearls with brushed gold. The elegant pin and earrings blend beautifully with the simple pearl dog collar.

Large Jet Beads Will make any woman feel magnificent and beautiful in any costume from street wear to evening styles. This sparkling set consists of a short, 3-strand necklace, cluster earrings and a wide, cuff bracelet.

Brushed-Gold Beads are Fashion news and the gay jewels are available in 1-strand uniform or graduated styles; 2-strand uniform or graduated and a 20-inch 2-strand piece. The matching earrings can be either button-style or clusters.

Pearls Add Enchantment and elegance to fetching fall fashions. Designed to give a sumptuous, sophisticated feeling from daytime to dinner and cocktails are these unusual-shaped pearls linked together with tiny gold beads. The piece is fashioned in four strands in the new, longer length and worn with distinctive matching earrings.

Scents and Sense

Hardly a woman wears the same jewelry with every costume. Still, countless numbers wear the same perfume with everything. And the reason for this contrariness is hard to fathom.

Even though you have a favorite scent, a change is as refreshing as a change of dress. Just consider at the moment how a new spicy or woody fragrance would punctuate your new autumn costumes. The effect would be striking, like that of any other well-chosen accessory. Perfume is an accessory and should be used as such.

Your Problems Big Pain Comes From Little Spiders, Ann Tells Unafraid

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN: My daughter-in-law is scared stiff of spiders. I think it's nonsense to go through life with foolish fears. My mother taught me when I was a child that the way to conquer a fear is to face it. I decided to try the technique on my daughter-in-law, and this is what happened:

I took a small spider and placed it on Valerie's arm to prove to her that they are harmless. She screamed as if she was being murdered. My son came running in, white as a sheet. Valerie almost passed out. She ran to the sink and splashed cold water on her face. Then she had to take a tranquilizer and go to bed.

Now I ask you, isn't that some show to put on because of a harmless little insect? Please print this letter to let them know what idiots they are. They are burned up at me and I'm the one who should be mad.—UNAFRAID

DEAR UNAFRAID: Your daughter-in-law is not a child and it was not your place to cure her of anything. You may have been well-intentioned, Mother, but your psychological experiment worked in reverse. Valerie will probably have nightmares about spiders for months to come.

Many campers will tell you that "harmless" spider bites have caused painfully swollen arms and legs. And, as you know, the black widow's bite can be fatal.

DEAR ANN: I'm a young mother who feels like a failure. My children are 4, 3 and 2 and honestly, I feel sorry for the poor things. I scream at them constantly, have no patience and spank them several times a day. I know this is wrong.

They're always hitting each other, breaking things, and getting into mischief. To be perfectly frank, I can't handle them.

My husband says it's all my fault and he's right. I'm a nervous wreck and hate to face the next day. Don't get the idea I don't love my kids. They mean the world to me, but I don't know how to control them. Can you help?—FRAYED NERVES

DEAR FRAYED: First see a doctor and get a check-up. You may be run down physically. Sometimes this makes people short-tempered and irritable.

Next contact a mental health clinic and get some reading material on rearing children. All mothers have days when they feel like failures, but when these feelings persist something is seriously wrong. Your husband doesn't sound like much help. You need his support, not his criticism. Get some reading material for him, too.

DEAR ANN: Our 15-year-old niece thinks she's Picasso. She has painted a picture that looks the same upside down and sideways. It makes no sense and she has the nerve to say it is her impression of ME.

She wants to sell us the painting for $25. I wouldn't hang it in the tool shed. My wife is furious, but we're afraid of offending the kid. What would YOU do?—UNCLE ZEKE

DEAR UNK: I'd give her Lake States TAPPI To Tour West Allis Allis-Chalmers Plant

HIS AND HERS—
BY MURIEL STAFFORD, GRAPHOLOGIST

All writing is a clue
I'm the culprit—

Change of Heart Needed

"... We don't argue over big things, but practically continuously over small things. Naturally, each blames the other. I suppose I'm the culprit... my trouble is I can't seem to keep my mouth shut."

Perhaps you aren't saying the right things. Your husband craves your full-hearted love. Your writing reveals that you are guarded rather than responsive. This may be the true source of your marital conflicts. His fault-finding could be an expression of frustration.

Contrast the lower loop of his "g" with the lower loop of your "y." He writes large full lower loops that cross the stem with an outgoing (rightward) motion.

An outgoing personality and a strong sex nature are revealed. You cross the loop of "y" with an inward stroke (towards the left.) Your letters also slant leftward and you make circle i-dots. All these are indications of introversion.

Try to come out of your shell. Be more demonstrative. (As a reminder, never allow yourself to invert a lower loop when you write.)

Your husband is a very emotional person. You must often puzzle him deeply by your impenetrability. The "small things" over which you continually quarrel will clear up like magic if you will show him that you love him instead.

No Wrong In Asking to Change Seat

BY EMILY POST
DEAR MRS. POST: A friend and I took a day-long bus trip just recently. The seats on the bus were not reserved. We arrived rather late and there were no double seats left, so we had to take two single seats one behind the other. After we made our first stop, I asked the man who was seated next to me (he was alone) if he would mind changing seats with my friend so that we could sit together, which he did. I overheard a woman in the bus say that she thought I had a lot of nerve asking him to change his seat. Will you please tell me if such a request was out of order?

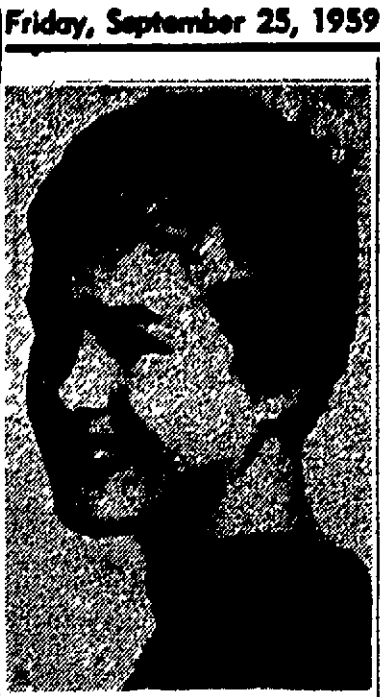

Answer: No, your request was quite proper because if the man did not wish to change seats he could easily have answered that he was sorry, but he much preferred keeping his seat by the window.

Note to Bridegroom's Parents
DEAR MRS. POST: I'm marrying a man whose family lives out of town. Should I mail his mother and father an engraved invitation or is that too impersonal? I do know from my fiancée that they are coming to the wedding.

Answer: You should send them an engraved invitation because they are interested in seeing it, and you should also write a personal note with it saying that you are sending the invitation just so they may see what they look like, and that you are looking forward to having them with you on your wedding day.

Showing One's Sympathy
DEAR MRS. POST: Is it correct to say "hello" when going into a house of mourning, and also to shake hands and even kiss the mourners?

Answer: The word "hello" is not the right one, but a

Spooky Food Fad Startles Nation

New York—Gourmets smile and housewives cringe at the new and undoubtedly strangest food fad ever to hit the nation.

Back in the uncivilized days, just a few years ago, when fried grasshopper hors d'oeuvres were still a novelty, an importer of this delicacy remarked whimsically that before long chocolate-covered ants would be on the market.

Today, sure enough, the "spooky food" industry which is doing a $250,000 yearly business, offers that delicacy.

Gourmet shops in most of the large cities throughout the U. S. now devote several shelves to such canned "spooky" canape items as fried ants, silkworms, Za za insects and Agave worms, fried baby bees, muskrat, and whole baby octopus. Except for the worms, which for years have been served at exclusive bars in Mexico, most of these originate in Japan.

Available for a long time have been such exotic foods—not considered "spooky"—as rattlesnake, snails and smoked eel; kangaroo tail, shark's fin and bird's nest soups; crystallized flowers from France; rose-petal jam from Turkey.

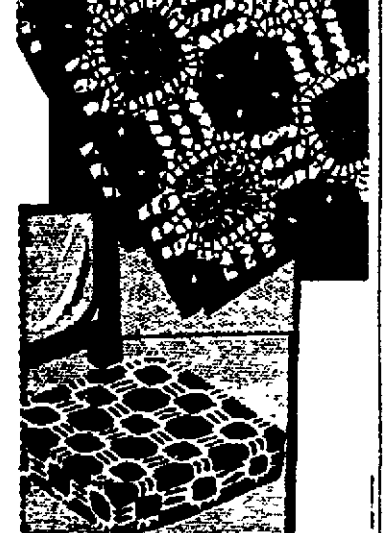

But today's hostess of refined taste also keeps her pantry stocked with pairs of roostercombs, in jelly, cockles and mussels, tender cactus pieces, squid in its own ink; chocolate-covered grasshoppers; and seaweed powder—wonderful soup seasoning and for making seaweed tea.

A recent item for which there has been a great demand, is broiled baby sparrows—packed four to seven in a tin; and others which have just become established in the American market are smoked skipjack tongues and fried butterfly cocoons.

Minister Licks Diet Problems

Dayton, O.—An—"My gluttony was going to turn my children into orphans."

It was as simple as that, says the Rev. Edsel F. Pugh. Realization of this grisly fact was the turning point for the Dayton pastor who had stuffed himself to a staggering 266 pounds.

In nine months, after his doctor had warned he'd die young unless he lost considerable weight, Mr. Pugh took off 98 pounds.

Like countless other Americans battling the problem of obesity, the pastor of Hillcrest Brethren church put off doing something about this threat to his physical well-being. "Sometime—tomorrow—next week—next month, I would begin to diet," Mr. Pugh always told himself. As a minister, he says, his "intemperance was a thorn in the flesh."

Road to Gluttony
The road to gluttony was an easy one. For 5-foot-8-inch Edsel Pugh it began when he, as a student pastor serving the rural churches in Kentucky, and his wife Ann spent weekends with the church families. Says he:

"They fed us to the point of misery. We sampled every variety of rich Southern food—and loved it."

To one particularly fine cook who knew his weakness for Southern fried chicken and old Kentucky ham, he often joked: "When I die, you can always say, 'I helped kill that boy.'"

Pugh's diet then and later, after he took over the Dayton pastorage, "must have exceeded 5000 calories." He ignored, even resented the advice of friends.

As the clergyman looks back on the period before his diet, he realizes he was in "constant stress from physical, as well as physical symptoms. I had lost my self respect. I was always tired and consequently unmotivated. My work lagged and I found no sense of satisfaction through accomplishment."

His doctor started him on a rigid diet. For 14 days his only food was 20 ounces of liquid formula—dextrose, evaporated milk, corn oil and water. After three or four days, he says, it felt good to be empty.

In seven days he was desperate. But he lost 17 pounds in the two-week period. This gave him incentive to go on a 1000-calorie diet for the next seven and a half months. Then his caloric allowance was increased to 1200 a day. Going about his church duties and attending frequent social events, Mr. Pugh says at first it was difficult.

Dr. Douglas M. Knight, Lawrence college president, right, both criticized and defended Appleton and American education at an Edison school PTA meeting Thursday night. The Edison building, he said, cannot be used year-around because "it has to be screwed back together every summer." About 150 attended.

"At dinners, 'til people realized I was serious, they pushed food on me. Sometimes we could arrange in advance what I'd eat or not eat. Otherwise, I just dispensed with food."

The minister credits his wife with much of his improvement. They made a rule that she and the children would continue their normal eating habits but he would stay on his diet. She, however, sometimes made allowable substitutions for him when the going got rough.

"My family made certain I did not forget the diet by placing a small ceramic devil in front of my place at the table. Our children constantly warned, 'You aren't allowed.'"

Now, however, 10-year-old Mark, 7-year-old "Fleety" and 3-year-old Martha have a new pal. Dad enjoys outdoor games as much as they do. No longer exhausted by his excess pounds, Mr. Pugh has new energy and new interests. He and his wife go in for antique hunting and furniture refinishing.

"Dieting takes will power," he points out. "I overindulged in food for reasons that have no logic or physical basis whatever. I ate, not because I was hungry, but because it was something to do."

Today, however, Mr. Pugh feels he has the problem licked. But he's still working at it.

Dr. Knight Lauds, Hits City Schools

Criticizes Edison Building, Defends Educational Quality

Dr. Douglas M. Knight, Lawrence college president, Thursday night turned concerned parent and educator, both criticizing and defending American and Appleton public school education.

He spoke on "The Ideal and Practice in American Education" before the Edison school PTA, whose members' children, he said, attend a school "for which you have to have a summer vacation, so it can be screwed back together."

However, said parent Knight, "It is not in fact true, I think, that primary and secondary education have declined in these last years; but it certainly is true that until quite recently, the needs of the country were developing faster than education was developing to meet them."

Criticized Critics
He criticized the critics, who say American "educational quality has declined and that it's headed the wrong way."

This outlook is shortsighted, Dr. Knight said, because "the demands on our system of primary and secondary education have changed radically in the last 30 years, but for a number of reasons we have failed to keep pace with those changing demands."

Education has failed to keep up because of huge increases in numbers of children and in numbers of courses that must be taught.

Public Responsibility
The responsibility for the failure to meet the challenges is both the educators' and the public's, he said. "If we want students to learn how to write, we have to pay for it," Dr. Knight insisted. "No teacher can be responsible for 200 students a week and correct themes with very much care."

Dr. Knight hit Appleton's two public school controversies of last spring—parents' criticism of progress reports and the furor created by a fellow Lawrence educator, Prof. Craig Thompson, over teaching composition in Appleton High school.

"The question of progress reports as opposed to grades did not seem quite worth the stir created over it," he declared.

"The difference is that the issue of writing involves a matter of quality."

Fall Training
Civil Defense Head Opens Police Class
Organization of civil defense auxiliary police classes has been started by Outagamie County CD Coordinator Andrew J. Schiltz.

Schiltz, who remains in his post while the proposed joint Appleton-Outagamie CD directorship hangs fire, as it has since May, said the state and federal civil defense organizations have changed their emphasis to more trained police auxiliaries. "We need trained men to direct traffic and assist regular police in any disaster," Schiltz said.

Sheriff Heads Force
Under state and federal civil defense regulations, Sheriff Robert Heinritz is responsible for all recruitment and training of auxiliary policemen. For the first time, Heinritz has a $500 request in his departmental budget for training auxiliary police in 1960. No money has been budgeted for that purpose previously.

The county has less than half the 155 police recommended by the state. Cities are in little better shape, with the exception of Kimberly and Kaukauna. Quotas for cities in the county include 185 for Appleton, 45 for Kaukauna, 22 for Little Chute, 17 for Kimberly, 10 for Seymour, five each for Black Creek and Shiocton, four for Combined Locks and three for Bear Creek.

The courses taught—basic civil defense, police services and first aid—are under direction of career policemen and qualified Red Cross instructors.

23 to 55 Years
Generally, men between 23 and 55 are accepted for training, Schiltz said. Upon completion of the course and the signing of a loyalty oath, the auxiliary policeman becomes a part of the state civil defense force, eligible for equipment purchased under the federal fund-matching plan and with workmen's compensation insurance coverage when on duty.

When auxiliary policemen are called for duty, Schiltz explained, they may work with or without direct supervision. Their training is designed to give them an understanding of the law and enforcement in a disaster situation.

Persons interested in the police training can mail a postal card with their name and address to "Civil Defense, Outagamie county courthouse, Appleton," or call Schiltz or their local director.

Paper Industry Opens Career Guidance Drive

Pulp and paper industry organizations have been invited to join the American Paper and Pulp association's paper industry career guidance committee.

The committee, organized to coordinate career guidance programs and attract and guide young people into careers in the industry, also named Walter B. Morehouse, Nopco Chemical corporation vice president, representing the Paper Industry Management association, chairman; Harris O. Ware, Beveridge Paper company technical manager, representing the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry, vice chairman; and Theodore H. Davis, APPA public relations director, secretary.

The committee plans to produce and distribute materials and programs to inform young people of career and employment opportunities in the pulp and paper industry. Career guidance specialists and educators will consult with the committee during planning meetings.

giving some students a winter term vacation, some a summer term vacation, he said.

He also lambasted, tongue-in-cheek, "the shadowgraph promotion policy, where you line the kids against a height graph, and when they get a certain size, you promote them." He noted that sometimes students are promoted without having completed the prescribed curriculum, and said Appleton has been handling teaching problems better in the lower grades than in high school.

He also advocated merit salary raises for teachers rather than across-the-board increases. "Merit raises," he said, "would help equate teaching with dignity."

Modern way to deal with CONSTIPATION

Years ago when folks were bothered with constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet, they fell back on harsh laxative drugs. They started a habit that was hard to break—and which did nothing to correct the cause of the trouble.

Today, millions of people have discovered a way to deal with irregularity that is safe, pleasant and effective. It's the Kellogg's All-Bran way.

This way is effective because Kellogg's All-Bran is a whole bran cereal. And bran is nature's best bulk-forming food. Just a small serving (half a cup with milk) each day provides all the good food bulk you need to regain youthful regularity.

Try this modern, economical good-food way. Enjoy Kellogg's All-Bran for just 10 days—let it work for you, too.
